Troops Patrol Battle-Scarred City In Cuba

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Troops and police in tanks and armored cars sealed off all entrances Saturday to the battle-scarred naval base city of Cienfuegos in south-central Cuba.

Heavily armed patrols hunted for remnants of a band of 400 rebels that failed after nearly 24 hours of bloody fighting to capture the sugar shipping port.

Scores of rebels were reported imprisoned in the heavily bombed and machine-gunned Cayo Loco naval station on a neck of land just outside Cienfuegos.

Residents of Cienfuegos said casualties in the fighting, which broke out Thursday and continued into Friday, might reach 150.

They said the best information available indicated a total of 75 rebels and troops and police were killed and at least another 75 wounded. Some of the seriously wounded were sent to hospitals in Havana.

All transportation and public services within the city were operating normally. But troops barred the entry of private cars and buses and all commercial airline flights were still suspended.

Police and troops seized anyone attempting to take photographs of the bombed and machine-gunned public buildings where rebels had holed up.

A Cuban newsreel cameraman and a photographer were arrested early today but later released. Soldiers held at gunpoint all persons who attempted to get close to the scene of the fighting.

Red Cross workers still were gathering up bodies and aiding wounded.

Broaden Quest For Clues In Judy's Slaying

CHICAGO (AP) — A relentless search for solution to the mystery slaying of 16-year-old Judith Mae Andersen spread Saturday into new areas on the North and Northwest Sides.

Police Commissioner Timothy O'Connor said more than 200 policemen continued a canvass of shops, garages, alleys and basements in quest of items or information in the case.

The girl disappeared Aug. 16 after starting to walk home from a girl friend's house. A few days later her dismembered body, four bullets in her head, was found in two oil drums fished from Montrose Harbor on Lake Michigan's shore.

The containers had been re-worked to adapt them as disposal coffins for her remains.

O'Connor said that cutting down and folding the metal was "expert work," a clue he said he considers important.

Police have checked out hundreds of tips and questioned scores of persons in the case, not counting thousands of householders in the Andersen neighborhood who were interviewed in a door-to-door check.

Ike Bypasses Red Rulers

Urges Syrian People End Neighbors' Fears Of Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) —

President Eisenhower bypassed Syria's pro-Soviet government Saturday and urged her people to do something to end fear of Communist-inspired attacks by Syria on her neighbors.

Eisenhower also pledged to use his full power as needed under the congressionally approved Middle East resolution, for blocking Communist expansion in the area.

The extraordinary appeal and re-affirmation of the Middle East resolution were reported by Secretary of State Dulles after an urgent, two-hour White House conference.

But Dulles refused to answer a key question put to him by newsmen:

Did this mean the Eisenhower administration was officially defining Syria as Communist-dominated under the Middle East resolution? That resolution promises American troops in response to calls for help from any Middle East nation attacked by a Communist-dominated country.

Dulles, turning away, said he could not go beyond "any inferences that may be drawn from the statement I just read you."

Eisenhower has assiduously avoided labeling Syria as Communist-dominated. "Leftist leanings" is as far as he has gone in describing the people in power in Syria.

Dulles said in the 290-word statement worked out with Eisenhower that the President already has acted under the Middle East resolution.

He said Eisenhower did this by ordering a speed-up in delivery of previously programmed defensive arms and economic aid to Syria. (Continued On Page Ten)

Margaret, Townsend Took Vow Never To Wed Another

LONDON (AP) — The Sunday Pictorial said Saturday night Princess Margaret has taken a vow never to marry anyone but Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

"At last the bitter truth about Princess Margaret can be told," it said.

The paper devoted its entire front page to a story that Margaret and Townsend made a pact never to marry. A few members of the royal family had known it, the Pictorial said.

In October two years ago, Princess Margaret publicly rejected Townsend's love—and his reported eagerness to marry her—for her duty to her country.

At that time the pretty princess and the divorced World War II hero were constantly in one another's company. Many persons expected an announcement that they would wed.

Instead, there was Margaret's dramatic rejection.

"She has taken a vow never to marry anyone else," said the Pictorial.

It gave "a friend of Townsend" as the source of its information.

This informant, not identified by name, was quoted as saying: "Townsend was then a shattered man. He told us quietly—as we cannot marry each other, then

Saud Goes To Lebanon For Talks On Impending Crisis

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — King Saud of Saudi Arabia flew unexpectedly to Beirut Saturday and promptly went into talks with President Camille Chamoun on Syria's swing toward the Soviet orbit.

The monarch apparently sought a first-hand report on Soviet penetration in the Arab nation.

Within an hour after his arrival, King Saud was in conference with Chamoun. He ordered the Saudi Arabian ambassador to Baghdad to rush to Beirut Saturday night.

In the past three weeks, the pro-Communist shift in Syria has increased steadily.

Syria's anti-Communist neighbors—Lebanon, Jordan and Iraq—are worried that so-called trade agreements between the Soviet Union and Syria are giving the Russians their long-sought outpost in the Middle East.

The United States recognizes these fears and is shipping arms to Syria's three Arab neighbors and Turkey. An airlift of U. S. weapons to Jordan started Saturday.

King Saud's visit caught Lebanon by surprise. President Chamoun got word of the visit in his summer home only 12 hours before the monarch's arrival.

Chamoun left hastily for Beirut to meet the King. Saud received only a minimum of the pomp usually accorded visiting Arab dignitaries. Then he and his party of four set up lodgings in a wing of the Bristol Hotel—not one of Beirut's luxury hotels.

Saud himself apparently decided at the last minute to make the trip. He was scheduled to visit Lebanon, but not until October. He plans to stay in Beirut two days and then go on to Switzerland.

Saud, a friend of the United States, comes to Lebanon close behind a visit by Loy Henderson, U. S. State Department trouble-shooter.

Red Ousted High Ranking Pole Flee To West

WARSAW (AP) — Kazimierz Jaworski, kicked out of his job in Poland's Communist government early this year, has fled to the West.

He is probably the highest ranking Polish Communist ever to defect. It was disclosed Saturday that he had led a Polish delegation to East Germany recently, then slipped into West Berlin and given asylum. The date was not given.

Jaworski lost his job as vice minister of construction in a government reshuffle and was named director of the Construction Research Institute.

His defection was disclosed in the engineering journal Fundament. Denouncing him as "vile, cowardly and a deserter," the journal declared:

"We don't care that he fled. But we think there was somebody who helped him, who knew about his flight. We blame that man too. We must find him."

Davies Calls Plea Of Board 'Anemic'

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus said Saturday night that his National Guardsmen still have orders to keep Negroes from entering Central High School.

The governor made this statement in an exclusive interview with an Arkansas Democrat newsmen about seven hours after a federal judge refused to delay integration at the school.

Faubus had not been seen since a news conference here Wednesday morning. The brief interview of the governor by George Douthitt of the Democrat was held at an undisclosed place.

Judge Ronald N. Davies of North Dakota acidly called the plea of the Little Rock school board to delay integration because of turmoil and strife "anemic" and left his previous order for immediate integration intact.

His dramatic action before a jammed courtroom left the federal government's dispute with Gov. Orval Faubus unchanged. Faubus' office said the governor would not comment immediately.

Gov. Faubus Monday night called out the Arkansas National Guard to keep Negroes away from the 2,000-pupil school, claiming he was preventing violence and disorder.

President Eisenhower and Atty. Gen. Brownell discussed the explosive Little Rock situation in Washington Saturday and later press secretary James Hagerty said it would be fair to say they discussed possible alternative actions depending on the next development in the case.

Wednesday, the Guardsmen stopped nine Negro teen-agers from entering.

Negro leaders Saturday said they could not say what action they would take. They refused to say whether they planned to advise Negroes to enter the school Monday.

National Guardsmen kept watch at Central High and the governors mansion.

"I have a constitutional duty and obligation from which I shall not shrink," the judge said in clipped and precise tones as he read Saturday's decision.

"In organized society," said Judge Davies, "there can be nothing but ultimate confusion and chaos if court decrees are flaunted, whatever the pretext."

Judge Davies scoffed at the governor's claims that violence was near before he called out the guard.

Provoo Admits Contributing To Boy's Delinquency

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A sobbing John D. Provoo, 40-year-old World War II Army sergeant once convicted of treason, pleaded guilty Saturday to contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

He blamed a "misguided conscience" for leading him to accompany a 16-year-old Annapolis, Md., boy on a runaway from home a week ago.

He said the boy had a home life that "leaves a great deal to be desired" and he felt sorry for the lad.

"I didn't have any mal (sic) intent," Provoo told County Judge Herbert Ronin at his arraignment. "I didn't mean to cause his parents any distress."

Provoo and the boy, Robert H. Lane, were found at a rooming house here about midnight after police had received a tip from a rooming house landlady.

The ex-sergeant said the two had arrived here Friday of last week, had worked one day at the Nebraska State Fair and another day for a Lincoln construction company.

Judge Ronin deferred sentencing until Provoo can be interviewed by Dr. James Reinhardt, University of Nebraska sociologist and criminologist who often is consulted by law enforcement officials here.

Provoo was accused of making propaganda broadcasts from Tokyo during World War II. He also was charged with giving military information to the Japanese and causing the death of a flier by informing on him in prison camp.

Provoo was convicted on the charges but the U. S. Court of Appeals set aside the conviction in August 1954. The appeals court ruled that Provoo should not have been tried in New York and also that the government had no right to cross-examine him on a collateral issue of homosexuality.

Lincoln Detective Lt. Joe Harbaugh told Judge Ronin during Saturday's arraignment there was no evidence that Provoo had mistreated his youthful companion here.

Provoo, who rested his head on the judge's bench and sobbed uncontrollably at one point, pictured himself as a man without a friend since his treason conviction.

Syria Warns Against Threats To Her Security

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A Syrian government spokesman announced Saturday Syria will not tolerate any action against Syrian security. It was the first official reaction to the stepped-up U. S. arms aid program in the Middle East.

His statement to a news conference was made shortly after Akram Hourani, head of the Baath party, declared that "Any attack on Syria might lead to a world war."

"The Middle East situation is very delicate, requiring... preparedness for any eventuality," Hourani said in a statement.

The Baath, or Arab Socialist Renaissance party, is a pro-Soviet group reported to be virtually running Syria with the full backing of the army, although Hourani has no public office and his party is one of the smallest in Parliament.

The official stand on the U. S. promise of more arms for pro-Western countries in the Middle East was voiced at a news conference. The spokesman said:

"All Syria is doing in the armaments sphere is for purely defensive considerations. But Syria will not tolerate any action against her security."

The government-sponsored Damascus radio called the U. S. decision to step up arms deliveries to its friends buffoonery aimed at halting "the spread of the liberationist spirit from Syria to other Middle Eastern countries."

The U. S. announcement tied in with its announced policy of combating Communist inroads in the Middle East. Syria has denied charges it has become pro-Soviet.

McKeldin Opposes Using Guard To Bar School Entry

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin said Saturday that "no member of the Maryland National Guard will ever be asked to cross his rifle at a schoolyard gate to bar the entrance of a little girl."

The governor made the reference to the use in Arkansas of National Guard troops to prevent school integration in a speech prepared for the dedication of a new Maryland guard armory in suburban Catonsville.

The guard, said McKeldin, is a military organization trained and prepared to cope with major emergencies and disasters within the state and to join in the defense of the nation in time of war.

There may be times, McKeldin said, "when a governor—commander in chief of his state's National Guard—may abuse or misuse his power of command, deliberately or in error, to settle a problem which would, in fact, yield much more easily to the powers of calm reasoning without the show of arms."

"It is up to us who are responsible for the present and long-range status of the guard to be calm but determined in the face of each such incident," he added.

SOVIET DEVELOPS NICOTINE-FREE TOBACCO

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet scientist claimed Saturday to have developed nicotine-free tobacco by grafting tobacco plants to tomato plant roots.

G. S. Rysin of the Bakh Institute of Biochemistry reported this in the newspaper Evening Moscow.

SERIOUS IKE — President Eisenhower wears a serious expression after leaving his office at the "Summer White House" on Coasters Harbor Island, Newport, Rhode Island. The President wired Gov. Strike Ties Up St. Louis Papers, Closes KSD-TV

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Operations at the two daily newspapers virtually stopped here Saturday night as a result of a strike of 22 electricians over a wage dispute.

Neither the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which missed its Saturday afternoon editions completely, nor the St. Louis Globe-Democrat went to press with early Sunday morning editions and there was little hope that they would be able to publish any of their later editions.

Mechanical union employees at the two newspapers refused to cross the picket lines of Local No. 1 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers when they were set up early Saturday after all-night negotiations broke down.

The strike caught employees of both newspapers by surprise. There had been no talk of a strike and most of the workers were not even aware the negotiations had been going on.

Members of the American Newspaper Guild reported to work at the Post-Dispatch but late in the afternoon the Guild decided to honor the picket line and the newspapersmen either completed their shifts or went out to eat.

The St. Louis Newspaper Publishers' Assn., which represents the two newspapers in labor relations, sought again to arbitrate the dispute.

A meeting between the union and management of the two newspapers was set in hopes of compromise. (Continued On Page Ten)

Eisenhower, Faubus Both On The Spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge, standing firmly by a school integration order, heightened an historic federal-state struggle Saturday and put President Eisenhower and Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas on terrific spots.

For the time being, the White House took no action. None was likely before Monday.

But someone was going to have to give way — the chief executive committed to uphold the laws of the nation and the Supreme Court's antisegregation ruling or the governor who defiantly used the Arkansas National Guard to prevent racial integration at a Little Rock high school.

The question was which would move, in which direction, with the least loss of face.

Study Measures
Eisenhower and Atty. Gen. Brownell quickly and inconclusively studied Saturday measures the federal government might take in the Arkansas integration crisis.

That was immediately before U. S. Dist. Judge Ronald N. Davies, in Arkansas, rejected a plea of the Little Rock School Board to suspend for an indefinite cooling-off period his decree opening Central High School to Negro students. Faubus had called out the state militia and forcibly prevented Negroes from entering the school, in disregard of Davies' order.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said it would be fair to say that Eisenhower and Brownell considered alternate steps the government might take, depending on which way Davies (Continued On Page Ten)

Ike Kills Bills For Pay Raises For U.S. Employees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pay increase bills for 1½ million federal employees were killed by President Eisenhower Saturday. He said they would add to inflationary pressures.

Republican leaders predicted Eisenhower would veto the bills when Congress passed them by lopsided margins last month. Some GOP sources said smaller increases might be approved next session, especially if Congress raises postal rates to help pay for them.

The two bills vetoed Saturday would have provided these increases effective this month:

1. An average boost of $318 a year, or 11 per cent, for one million classified civil service, congressional and judicial employees.
2. An increase of $546 a year, or 12½ per cent, for 500,000 postal workers.

The extra payroll cost was estimated at $50 million dollars a year.

The last raises for both groups were March 1, 1955, when postal workers received a 6 per cent increase and classified employees 7½ per cent.

Eisenhower said claims that further increases are justified by rises in the cost of living have not been sustained.

In a memorandum of disapproval, the President said the pay increases would contribute unnecessarily to "existing and incipient inflationary pressures in our national economy."

"I am firmly convinced," Eisenhower said, "that our people want orderly economic growth with reasonable price stability. The attainment of this goal lays heavy obligations upon us all. Of the federal government it demands fiscal integrity, however hard the choices of such a course may impose."

Miller-Crouse United In Church Rites

The father of the bride, the Reverend Gerald Miller, pastor of Central Christian church in this city, performed the double ring ceremony that united in marriage his daughter, Patricia Joan, and James Edward Crouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Crouse, 141 East Independence avenue, on Saturday, Aug. 31.

The ceremony was performed at the church at two o'clock in the afternoon before a large gathering of friends and relatives. Tall baskets of white gladioli with palms banked the altar and white slim tapers burned in branched candelabrum. K. Layton Miller of Ft. Worth, Tex., brother of the bride, gave her in marriage.

Mrs. K. Layton Miller served her sister-in-law as matron of honor. A cousin, Mrs. Donald Craig Speer, San Antonio, Tex., and a close friend, Miss Sharon Woodridge, former resident now living in Chicago, were secondary attendants.

The groom was attended by his brother, Clarence H. Crouse, Jr., of this city with J. Allen Biggs, Jr., Jacksonville, and Reginald Crouse, brother of the groom, and Brooks Miller, the bride's brother, were ushers.

Mrs. Francis Angel played the organ prelude that included "Intermezzo," "I Love You Truly," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Because," with the processional and recessional in tradition. The soloist was Mrs. John Gillespie, who sang "I Love Thee," "Grieg," and "The Lord's Prayer," Malette.

Gowned in White Satin

The bride wore a floor-length gown of Skinner satin with bouffant skirt worn over full hoops and ending in a sweeping chapel train at the back. It was fashioned with a tight fitted bodice, scoop neckline outlined with a wide adornment of seed pearls. Tiny covered buttons extended from the back neckline to before the natural waist. The long fitted sleeves tapered to points over the hands.

Her fingertip veil of sheer illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls arranged in scallops. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid and showered with narrow satin ribbon.

The matron of honor wore a fuchsia colored antique taffeta ballerina length frock styled with scoop neckline and short sleeves. The tight fitting bodice extended to a dropped waistline at the front and a very full gathered skirt. The back featured a flat bow at the neckline with streamers extending below the waist. She carried a hand bouquet of fuchsia carnations tied with matching color ribbon. Her large picture hat was made of the same material as her dress.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Crouse

The other attendants' dresses and hats were in peacock blue taffeta and styled identically to that worn by the matron of honor. They carried hand bouquets of peacock blue carnations with matching color ribbon. All three wore plastic springator slippers with jeweled heels.

Mrs. Gerald Miller chose for her daughter's wedding a bronze colored imported lace dress with brown accessories and brown beaded hat accented with pearls. Her corsage was of cluster mums. Mrs. Crouse, mother of the groom, wore ice blue lace with blue accessories and a corsage of white cluster mums with pink touches.

Reception at Temple
A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the dining hall at the adjoining Masonic Temple. White gladioli and peacock blue carnations were used in decor with a touch of fuchsia in the bells and net ruffles surrounding the three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a minature bride and groom.

Fruit punch was served with the wedding cake. Assisting were Misses Ann Pearce, Becky Crouse, Carol Ann Speer, Patricia Garlich, Sheryl Savage, Mary Lee McClintock.

Presiding at the guest book was Mrs. Clarence H. Crouse, Jr. Others assisting with the reception were Mrs. Fay Mentler, Mrs. Raymond Hardy, Mrs. Joseph Doolin, Mrs. James Robson and Mrs. Charles Adams.

When the couple left for a wedding trip in the Missouri Ozarks the bride was wearing a navy blue satin-backed slubbed rayon suit with deep collar and jewel trim bow at the back. Her accessories were white and her hat a cascade of white feathers. The white orchid from her wedding bouquet completed the costume.

Mrs. Crouse is a senior student at Texas Christian University in Ft. Worth, a religion major and member of Chi Delta Mu. Mr. Crouse graduated from Jacksonville high school and is a senior student at S.I.U. where he is an industrial engineering major. He is a member of Gamma Nu.

Mr. and Mrs. Crouse will be at home in Carbondale at 911 South Elizabeth street after Sept. 8 when he will enroll at the university. Mrs. Crouse will be on the staff at the First Christian church in that city.

Alexander Celebrates Completion Of Community Building

Village Will Hold "Open House" September 14

By JOHN B. MARTIN

Residents of Alexander and surrounding area will soon be the proud possessors of a newly completed Community Building, which is designed to house equipment for the recently organized Volunteer Fire Department, as well as serve as a recreational center for community activities throughout the year.

The building is constructed of concrete block, brick and wood. Much of the construction, as well as details complete with landscaping, has been accomplished with the help of a multitude of local craftsmen who have donated their time and equipment.

Activity "Boosted"
The sense of enthusiasm in the village of Alexander, unincorporated and slightly more than 200 population, has been generated by the Alexander Business Association, Inc., organized last October, and now boasting a membership of about 130 and "still growing," according to officers. The association was organized with the idea of serving as the "guiding light" for community projects, and has since grown in scope to include a fire department, community building, and a current project started to bring about the installation of signal lights at a railroad crossing within the village.

The association has four regular meetings yearly, alternating between local churches for a dinner meeting. Officers of the organization are: Joe Bergsneider, president, and E. P. Hohmann, secretary-treasurer.

Add Fire Department
With the addition of a volunteer fire department, made possible through the efforts of the Business Association, and other interested citizens of the community, residents hope to initiate a decrease of fire insurance rates, as soon as a standby unit is deemed feasible. The present truck has been approved by the State and is eligible for a rating. Thirty volunteers have already signed up as firefighters, and a few more are expected to do so shortly.

In the few short months the fire department has been in existence, two decisive runs have been chalked up in which they are credited with saving a two-story frame building from total destruction and preventing the spread of flames at a nearby barn fire.

Chief To Address Group
Fire Chief Howard Reynolds, of the Jacksonville Fire Department, will present a talk entitled "Evolution of Rural Firefighting and Organization." Thursday evening, Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. (Daylight Saving time), in the Community building, for members of the volunteer fire unit and interested citizens of the community. Officials of the unit extend a cordial welcome to any other volunteer departments of the surrounding area to attend the meeting.

One of the first community affairs to be held in the newly completed building will be a dance and "open house" Sept. 18 to celebrate the completion of last year's dream come true. The men and women of Alexander are justly proud of their accomplishments of the past year and look forward to increased achievements in the years ahead.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lawrence E. McConville of Los Angeles, and the late Theodore H. Ashford, of Boon, Iowa. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Warren Ashbaugh of East Paletine.

The altar of St. Mark's church was adorned with white mums, white gladioli, ferns and tapers. White satin bows, holding Forsythia, marked the pews of the center aisle of the church.

During the nuptial Mass Miss Lucille Hendershot played "Liebestraum," "Caprice," "Salut D'Amour." She accompanied Frank Hart who sang "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus" and "Mother Beloved" as the bride placed a floral offering on the altar of the Blessed Virgin. Miss Hendershot also played the traditional wedding marches.

The bridal attendants preceded the bride and Homer G. Rockwood down the aisle to the altar where they were joined by the best man, Theodore H. Ashford, brother of the bride, Chicago, and the groomsmen, James Duppke, Chicago; Michael Norris, Jacksonville; John Schults, Beardstown; and Jay Demerath, Clayton.

Peau-de-Soie Wedding Gown
The bride chose a gown of lined Peau-de-Soie, designed on Renaissance lines with long tapered sleeves and fitted torso. A yoke of lace formed the bateau neckline and appliques of re-embroidered lace formed a band around the very full chapel length skirt. A queen's cap in lace, trimmed in pearls, held her floor length veil of imported illusion edged with matching lace. She carried an orchid encircled with white rosebuds.

Miss Lucy Newton, Chicago, maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Janet White, Beardstown; Miss Judy Rice, Cleveland, Ohio; Miss Ann Bates, Chicago; and Miss Mary Ellen Ratanman, Sidney, Ohio, wore identical gowns of pale green chiffon fashioned with off the shoulder drapes of emerald green. The folds of chiffon extended, in the back, to the hemline of the full ballerina length skirts. They wore matching feather hats with blusher veils of emerald green and they carried cascade bouquets of white roses and stephanotis.

The bridegroom, best man and groomsmen wore black semi-formal coats, striped trousers and white cravat boutonnieres.

33 Bushels Per Acre Of Beans At Jerseyville

JERSEYVILLE—The first flurry of soy bean deliveries of the 1957 harvest began in the Jersey county area this week.

The first deliveries made to the Beach Grain company of Jerseyville were made by the firm of Schroeder and Knight Wednesday. They combined a small acreage of early beans that are reported to have averaged 33 bushels per acre.

The Jersey County Grain company reported they received the first beans of the current season early this week from Ruby Miller. The manager of the company, Frank Rench, reported the firm had received about 2500 bushels of new crop beans up to Wednesday evening and shipped their first car load of beans that day.

The first beans delivered to the McClusky elevator of the Jersey County Grain company were from land operated by Albert Volmer and Edward Hoffman. These were delivered Tuesday.

The acreage of soy beans planted early in Jersey county is reported as small compared with other seasons. The heavy rains of April, May and June delayed the planting of early acres, and much of the farm land planted in beans reveals the plantings were mostly late in June or early July. The main bean harvest will start in another two weeks, depending greatly on weather conditions that develop during the period.

The soy bean growers in the vicinity of Jerseyville have reported the need for more rainfall for their late beans during the next three weeks. Two light rains fell during the past month in the Jerseyville area, and localities four or five miles northeast of the area received an additional two inch rain, not received by fields in the immediate Jerseyville vicinity.

NEW THEATER
NEW YORK (AP)—Famous Carnegie Hall, a Gotham landmark is to be torn down but its theatrical tradition will continue. A 1,200-seat theater is to be incorporated into the 44-story building to be erected.

It will be the first theater built under New York's revised construction code. Previously any theater for stage productions had to be housed in a separate building.

Creamed dishes are often served, restaurant-style, with "toast points." To make the points, toast thin slices of white bread and cut each slice into four triangles. Crusts may be trimmed if desired.

Married Sept. 13, 1907

Rev. Roger Cressey, pastor of Northminster church, officiated at a quiet wedding at 1178 North Diamond street, on Sept. 13, 1907. Immediately afterwards the young couple took the train for St. Louis, where they boarded the river packet Albert Lee, bound for Memphis.

On Sunday, Sept. 15, Mr. and Mrs. L. Arch Vasconcellos will greet friends at their country home two miles northeast of Jacksonville on Strawn's Crossing road. Open house in observance of their 50 years of married life will be from 2 to 5 p. m., and in the evening they will be with their three children and their four grandchildren.

Edna Fernandez was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Fernandez. Her father was a towerman for the Wabash. Her husband is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Vasconcellos, and his father was a veteran stone mason and contractor who specialized in the erection of churches.

Two of his buildings are now called Northminster Presbyterian church on West Court Street and Central National Life on East State street and several buildings on MacMurray College campus.

A Log Buyer
Vasconcellos, fresh out of Brown's Business College, had a job waiting for him: scaler and buyer for a lumber company. For two years he bought logs in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi.

"Some of the timber areas were mighty rough," he recalls now. "In three places we had to use oxen to get the logs. It was too tough for mules—they died like flies."

Two years later they turned northward to Rock Island, where he was auditor of the Modern Woodmen of America for 10 years. They came back to Morgan county, and to the place where they now live, in 1918. Vasconcellos became the assistant to Fletcher Blackburn, who was then running elevators at Jacksonville, Strawn's Crossing, Sinclair, Riggs and Naples.

In 1928 Blackburn was elected sheriff and Vasconcellos was his chief deputy. In 1933, Vasconcellos bought his first paint and paper store from George Rodriguez, on West Court street. Later he bought Mid-Corde store on South Main street and in 1939 he came up to the north side of the square where the Schmalz grocery had been running for so many years.

Stores In Partnership
The Rambo Paint & Paper company is a partnership of L. Arch, his two sons, Jerry and Kenneth, and his brother, Paul. The latter operates the Marshalltown, Iowa, store, which was opened in 1940.

In 1949 they opened a store in Clinton, Iowa, and it operated until 1955 when L. Arch decided to retire.

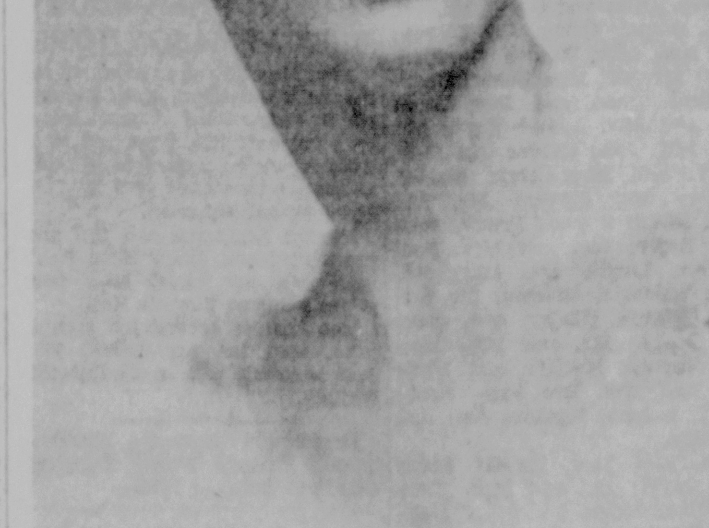

A nephew, Richard Guthrie, had been the manager there. He came to the local store and Vasconcellos retired to fishing and gardening, with summer vacations in Minnesota and winter months at Marathon, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Vasconcellos have had active lives. Both describe the other as "the busiest person in the world."

Busy, Busy
She has been an earnest worker in all phases of Northminster Presbyterian church and is now the teacher of the Young Women's class. She was a director of the Trinidad school, secretary of the Springfield Presbyterian, president of the Garden club, Home Bureau chairman of 4-H club work and Rural Youth activities, and right now she's chairman of the Jacksonville Day unit of the Home Bureau.

In her spare time she indulges in her hobby: sewing for her family. He was a G.O.P. committeeman in old No. 16 for 14 years and was the local organizer of the Ziegler, Grotto and the Jacksonville Exchange club. He was assessor in Township 15-10 for two terms, chairman of the trustees of Northminster church and was on the board of the Jacksonville Y.M.C.A. For eight years he was a member of the supreme council of the Grotto and served as secretary in both Illinois State & Mid-State Grotto Associations.

For next Sunday's open house their three children: Bea (Mrs. Don Blackstone of Chicago), Jerry and Kenneth of Jacksonville, and their four grandchildren, Armina, Vicki, Jerry Jo and Edna Vasconcellos, will be present.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
NEW YORK (U. S. —) Wall Street's week showed its extreme doubt concerning the immediate outlook for business as stock market trading sank to its lowest rate in nearly four years.

Traders and investors, large and small, stayed out of the market in droves. They were awaiting some definite clue as to whether the next market trend would be up or down; and no clue came.

The daily average of shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange dwindled to 1,389,796, the lowest since the week ended Nov. 20, 1953, when the average was 1,344,000.

The financial community, having passed the Labor Day weekend, was looking for some indication of future prospects to follow that traditional turning point. It was a wait-and-see market.

While the investing public waited, stock market values drifted downward. Although buying interest was lacking, there was no particular selling pressure.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined $2.20 to $173.50. This erased the gains made in last week's surprising pre-holiday advance. But the low volume robbed the decline of any monetary significance.

Higher interest rates and the leveling-off of the business boom continued as fundamental factors in the market.

Since most of the business outlook will depend on the success of the 1958 model automobiles, there was a strong disposition to wait to see how they will sell. If the '58 models get an enthusiastic buying reception, it would mean a spur for business in general.

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK (U. S. —) U. S. government bonds showed a firmer tone this week amid signs of a growing bullish sentiment in the financial community. Investment quality issues moved a shade higher in a generally steady corporate list. Utilities also were up on balance. Dealers in government bonds noted an air of cautious optimism and pointed to the recent flow of predictions that interest rates have gone about as high as they are likely to go.

Seek 3 Wanted In Mutilation Of Negro Man

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. (U. S. —) Officers Saturday pressed a search for at least three more men wanted in the Ku Klux Klan-linked sex mutilation of a 33-year-old Negro man.

Three white men, one identified as a KKK grand cypsel, were arrested Friday night on mayhem charges. Their bond was set at $5,000 each.

Sheriff's deputies and state investigators also raided what they described as a Klan meeting place near Birmingham at which Judge Aaron was castrated Monday night.

The officers found hooda, robes and insignia used by the Klan, copies of Citizens Council literature, a duplicating machine and a Bible in the building.

Aaron told police he was kidnapped while walking with a woman companion. He said his attackers, some robed and hooded, told him to tell the Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth that the same thing will happen to Negroes who attempt to curb their children in white schools.

Shuttlesworth is a pro-integration leader who is among a group of Negro parents seeking admittance of eight Negro children to three white city schools here. School authorities are studying the applications.

The three arrested Friday night were William J. Miller, 28, and J. N. Griffin, 28, clerks in a supermarket, and Joe Pritchett, 31, who arresting officers said had been identified as a Klan cypsel.

Investigators gave this account of the attack: Eight men attended a called meeting of a KKK group Monday at a Klansman's home. Six were designated to "go get a Negro."

They started out in two cars, stopping at a drug store and purchasing some razors and turpentine.

After riding around about an hour they found Aaron walking along a highway with a woman companion. They kidnapped him and took him to the Klan meeting place.

There Aaron was given his choice of being killed or mutilated.

The devotional period, led by Mrs. Emory Kaufmann, opened with union singing of the World Citizenship Quadrangle Goals for 1956-1959. Mrs. Kaufmann read Scripture from Matthew and a poem, "When I Come to the Close of the Day." After a hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves," this period closed with a prayer.

The program leader, Mrs. Albert Telling, presented the subject "Mission Cinema."

During the business session, conducted by the president, Mrs. Joe Schneider, Mr. Harold Deibert read a letter from Mrs. J. A. Mann of Jacksonville, the district secretary for Christian/social relations, asking the Society to contribute fifteen dozen cookies to the Methodist Chautauque Foundation at Rantoul on September 19. The members voted to do so.

Saturday, November 23, was chosen as the date of the Society's annual bazaar.

The flower and music committee members are Mrs. James Major, Mrs. Louella Hildebrand, Mrs. Walter Puls and Mrs. Gus Norrup. The October hostesses are Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. Lorette VanDeventer. Mrs. VanDeventer plans to have the meeting at her home on the island; in case of rain, the meeting will be in town. Mrs. Schneider will be the lesson leader.

Mrs. William Davies was hostess for the Salem W.C.S. at her home Thursday afternoon, assisted by Mrs. Ann Armstrong, Mrs. Bertha Davies and Mrs. Rita Ausliff. The president, Mrs. Roy Robson, called the meeting to order.

A song, "I Am Thine O Lord" was sung. Mrs. Hiram Stubbfield had devotions, reading from the book, "Abundant Life," by E. Stanley Jones. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Milo Smith. Mrs. Esther Sayre gave the secretary's report.

The society decided to have a potluck supper at the church Friday evening, Sept. 13, at 6:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Orson Masters and Miss Mary M. Wax had charge of the program which consisted of true stories of pioneer days read by Mrs. Hiram Stubbfield and Mrs. Dale Hamilton. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer in union.

Refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served by the committee. Guests present were Mrs. Harry Bourne and Mrs. Howard Carter.

Brother Of Local Woman Missing In Lake Huron

ROGERS CITY, Mich. (U. S. —) A man was found tied to the mast of a floundering sailboat in Lake Huron Friday night. He told police of a five-day ordeal in which two companions were blown overboard.

Marvin Mallis, 29, of West Bloomfield Township, a Detroit suburb, was suffering from exposure and unable to give details of the tragic ending of a Labor Day outing.

He identified his companions as Dr. Donald N. Aiken and Richard G. A. d r n e r, both of Bloomfield Township. They were believed to have drowned.

Presque Isle County Sheriff's Deputy Sam Treadwell said: "It's a miracle Mallis is even alive."

Mallis was hospitalized at this city on the northern edge of Michigan's lower peninsula.

The sailboat was sighted in northern Lake Huron Friday by Nolan May, wheelman on the freighter Princeton. Tugs from Rogers City rushed to the rescue and found Mallis tied to the mast as the ship lay on its side in the choppy lake.

Treadwell said the three apparently left Port Huron on Labor Day.

Dr. Aiken leaves two sisters in this area: Mrs. Robert O. Adams, Passavant Drive, Jacksonville, and Mrs. Harold Haney, Springfield.

Waverly Group To Sell Stock In Bowling Project

WAVERLY — A group of men from Waverly and surrounding communities, will start selling voluntary stock Monday for a hoped-for bowling alley in the community, similar to a bowling alley at Pleasant Plains.

When the Rex Theatre was listed for sale several months ago, it gave an opportunity to secure this suitable spot for the bowling alley. By contacting the Pleasant Plains men in charge of their bowling alley, they learned of their successful operations.

James Whalen is the general chairman of operations and he has appointed committees on building, stock sales and equipment. James Handy, chairman of equipment, has compiled full information relative to material needed and its cost for such an operation. Lloyd Hale, as chairman of the building committee, has secured blueprints of suitable structures for the housing of a six lane bowling alley and has local contractors figuring costs of carrying out the work.

As the date nears for the opening of the stock sale, a number of the Waverly men have gone to Pleasant Plains to see the building and equipment, both of which are very similar to that which would be installed here. These men are impressed not only with the ultra-modern layout in the neighboring community but, from the investor's standpoint, equally impressive is the amount or patronage.

Harold Lowery is chairman of the sales campaign which will open Monday. At the present, the sales committee will make a drive to secure pledges to purchase shares in the corporation. The shares will sell at $100 each with a maximum of $5,000 to any single purchaser. The pledge drive will continue for 30 days, and at the end of that time, if sufficient funds have been pledged, the group will incorporate and the duly elected board of directors will be vested with the authority to carry out the project.

Pittsfield C. Of C. Holds Annual Fall Festival

PITTSFIELD — The annual Fall Festival, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, and the Lion's Club Carnival met with more or less disagreeable weather but both continued for the three days.

On Friday morning Mrs. Clarence Marshall and Mrs. A. W. Schimmel, Jr., were in charge of registering of Home Arts, which were judged Sunday noon.

There were many entries in many divisions, including rugs, quilts, pillow cases, flower arrangements, cookies, cakes, candies, breads and miscellaneous items. All winners received prizes.

In the Doll Parade, Diana Pindley, The Old Woman Who Lived In A Shoe, drew first prize; Stephanie Donohoo, as a Little Dutch Girl, was second; and Moya Aikin and Becky Irving tied for third place.

In the Trike Parade, Robert Capps and Mike Niebur in a cute water-skiing stunt won first prize. Kent Turnbull, as Billy Graham, was second, and tied for third were Theresa Irving and Cindy Berry.

In the contest the merchants each place some article in their show window which they themselves do not sell. Those with the nearest correct list of the items win the prizes. Winners were Mrs. Kermit Klinefelter, Donna Belle Simmonds, Mrs. Gilbert Shaw and Mrs. Harold Grimes.

The highlight of Saturday's program was the Parade of Floats at two o'clock in the afternoon.

The entertainment throughout the three days was good, with several bands, free acts, free gifts of valuable merchandise, selected entertainers on stage, etc.; there were no dull moments between contests.

The concessions in charge of the various civic organizations were well patronized.

The entire Festival program was planned and financed by the Chamber of Commerce, with the cooperation of the merchants of the city. Funds derived from the Lion's Club Carnival are used to augment their treasury for use in the program of civic welfare and community activities in which they engage.

'Same' Acres In '58 Reserve Mean Higher Payments

Farmers who took part in the Soil Bank's 1957 Acreage Reserve program can earn a 10-per-cent premium this year above the 1958 program compensation rates, Charles R. Gibson, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said Saturday.

The condition attached to the higher payment is that the farmer put the identical land in the 1958 Acreage Reserve as was included in the 1957 program.

This is in line with the promise made to farmers in August of last year. Mr. Gibson explained, that "farmers entering land in the 1957 (winter wheat Acreage Reserve) program will be offered incentives to designate the same land in future programs."

Farmers are now calling at County ASC offices throughout the State, signing agreements to participate in the 1958 winter wheat Acreage Reserve program. All farmers who have an "old farm" wheat acreage allotment for 1958, and who normally grow winter wheat, are eligible to sign an Acreage Reserve agreement before the program's deadline—October 4.

Under the 1958 program, farmers must reduce their acreage of winter wheat below the farm wheat acreage allotment and they must also limit their harvest of all crops to a "permitted acreage."

This is intended to prevent shifts from one harvest crop to another, which results in new surpluses.

Eisenhower, Faubus both On The Spot

decided the school board's bid for a tension-easing truce.

No Decisions
Hagerty said no decisions were reached and none could be until Davies acted. Once the judge did, Eisenhower was notified at once. But there still was no comment and Hagerty said there probably would be no further statement or announcement over the weekend.

Thus it appeared that the federal government would withhold action until Judge Davies reaches another formal decision — on whether there was deliberate flouting of his integration order through interference or noncompliance.

Asked Report
Davies has asked for a report on that from the Justice Department and the FBI. Hagerty said Brownell took the matter up with Eisenhower Saturday and that the report probably will be submitted to the judge Monday.

It will be a fact-finding report, without recommendations, Hagerty said, leaving it up to Judge Davies to decide whether there was interference or noncompliance.

Judge Refuses To Postpone Integration

on the mayor's municipal law enforcement powers.

Mann said that large crowds milling around the high school in the past week have created a powder keg which he said could be set off "by a planned incident."

The mayor obviously was attempting to find a way to regain police control over the area.

School Superintendent Virgil T. Blossom said no new orders would be given the nine Negro students. "They have their orders from the court," he said.

Issue Statement
Later the school board issued a statement saying that in view of the court's decision "the integration plan is still in effect and Little Rock Central High School will be opened Monday for all students."

The court proceedings required less than 18 minutes in two sessions. In the light green, oak-paneled courtroom in Little Rock's federal building.

A. P. House, school board attorney, read the original petition for delay of integration. The petition said tensions between anti and pro integrationist groups of students and parents prevented an orderly education program.

House told Judge Davies he could back up the petitions claims with evidence.

Judge Davies told him to produce it.

School Superintendent Blossom took the stand to say that "due to conditions around the school, it is impossible for children within the school to receive an education."

He also testified that he had spoken possibly 180 times to civic groups to explain the Little Rock integration plan — which calls for integration first in the high school, then the junior high, and later the elementary schools.

Wiley Branton, representing the Negro children who originally obtained court orders for immediate integration, pleaded for immediate desegregation.

"Tension and agitation have no bearing on this lawsuit at this time," he said, "because they were brought on by actions of the National Guard."

Branton said, "I always believed that when a court ruled that way, it was still have a basic faith in the order of this court will be carried out. We believe the facilities of the government will help carry it out."

He charged that "any delay in integration would be a blow to the dignity of mankind and a blow to federal authority."

The decision followed by a few hours the conference between President Eisenhower and Atty. Gen. Brownell in Washington on the racial troubles.

Eisenhower repeatedly has said he would uphold the

Moore Requests 2-Week Delay For Title Bout

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Archie Moore's request for a two-week postponement of his Sept. 20 title bout with Tony Anthony drew this response Saturday from the challenger's camp.

"He can give $10,000 from his end of the purse or drop dead."

The gentle rejoinder came from Enrie Braca, manager of the young challenger for Archie's light heavyweight crown.

If Moore fails to come up with the extra cash and still demands the delay, Braca said, the championship will be claimed in Anthony's name on the night of Sept. 23, when the bout is scheduled for Olympic Auditorium.

Moore did not give any reason for the requested delay other than to say it was for personal reasons and had nothing to do with his condition or the progress of his training. His wife is expecting a baby any time now, and it is believed that could be behind the request.

Boston Shades Orioles, 4-3, On Malzone Single

BOSTON (AP)—Pressure proof Pete Daley hit a tie-making home run and Frank Malzone followed with a two-run single Saturday for Boston's 4-3 victory over Baltimore.

Connie Johnson, the Orioles' lean right-hander, had a 2-0 lead on a two-hitter going into the bottom of the seventh inning when the Sox concentrated an offensive in one swift jolt.

Mickey Vernon led off with a single to center for the third hit off Johnson and was forced by rookie Ken Aspromonte. Daley timed a Johnson fast ball on a 2-2 pitch and sent it high into the left field screen to knot the count.

The relief catcher from Boston had beaten the New York Yankees Wednesday night with an 11th inning homer and edged the Orioles last night with a double after two were out in the ninth.

With the bases loaded, Malzone who had been in a recent hitting slump slashed a single to left past the diving Billy Goodman for two runs.

Cooper Thrashes Flam; Gibson And Brough In Finals

By Will Grimley
FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—America's fluctuating Davis Cup fortunes hit another low Saturday when Australia's young Ashley Cooper thrashed Herbie Flam 6-1, 7-5, 6-4, assuring an all-foreign final in the National Tennis Championships.

The 29-year-old, dark-haired Aussie, champion of his country and top-seeded favorite here, will play the winner of the match between his fellow countryman, Malcolm Anderson, and Sweden's Sven Davidson, Sunday.

Cooper, never impressive, cashed in on Flam's wasted opportunities to win the match which had been billed as a possible revival of the Davis Cup challenge round next December.

Althea Gibson and an old adversary, Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., marched in to the women's finals with easy straight-set triumphs. They clash Sunday, renewing an old feud.

The tall Negro girl, who learned the game with a wooden paddle on New York's sidewalks, conquered Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode of Forest Hills, 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Brough, 34-year-old international veteran from Beverly Hills, Calif., who choked Althea's first bid for this crown here seven years ago, moved into the finals with equal impressiveness—a 6-2, 6-4 victory over Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif.

I feel Althea can be beaten and I believe I can do it," Miss Brough said.

The Californian last defeated Althea in 1955. Since then, however, she has lost to the 29-year-old Harlem girl three times.

Miss Gibson, whose confidence was late catching up with her tremendous natural ability, is working on her eighth straight tournament victory—a stretch which included a spectacular triumph at Wimbledon before Queen Elizabeth II.

She hasn't lost a singles match since last January when she was beaten in Australia by Shirley Fry, who also whipped her in the national finals a year ago. Miss Fry, now married and living in Australia, did not defend.

Bears Rate As Strong Favorites In Midwest

NEW YORK (AP)—A notable development in the 1957 National Football League season took place before even an exhibition game had been played—a coach fired himself for not winning.

Buddy Parker resigned as coach of the Detroit Lions, a team he had brought from last place in the western division in 1955 to second in 1956. He did it in a surprise move.

Parker said he couldn't control his players or instill life into them and that he couldn't face another season like the losing one of 1955. A short time later Parker signed to replace ailing Walt Kiesling as head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Parker's statements lowered the stock of the Lions as rivals for the power-laden Chicago Bears in the West. But the Detroit team, under George Wilson, restored some hope by winning its first three exhibitions while the Bears were tied by Baltimore and beaten by the New York Giants, who had trounced them in the championship playoff last fall.

Chicago's monsters of the midway still are rated as strong favorites in the west while the eastern section shapes up as a race for almost any team.

Last December the New York Giants clobbered the Bears 47-7 on the frozen Yankee Stadium turf and won the National League championship. This year the Giants aren't given more than an even chance of repeating in their own division.

Coach Jim Lee Howell has 32 of his 33 title winning players back, plus a few promising rookies, but the Giants actually may have slipped a little instead of advancing.

The loss of Rocky Grier, huge defensive tackle, to the Army was a severe one. And quarterback Charley Conerly, Emien Tunnell and Kyle Rote are a year older and not improving.

Meanwhile the Cleveland Browns, eastern champions for six straight seasons before last year, the Chicago Cardinals and Washington Redskins all are looking for better performances.

The Browns, who never can be dismissed lightly, haven't found another quarterback like retired Otto Graham. Leading candidates are Bobby Garrett, back from the Army; Tom O'Connor, a Bears castoff; and Milt Plum, a rookie from Penn State.

The Cards, who showed a great offense last year with Ollie Matson, Joe Childress and Johnny Olszewski, have tried to beef up their defensive line.

The Redskins, noted for their rugged line play under Joe Kuharich's coaching, still have quarterback problems that little Eddie LeBaron and Al Dorow can't solve. Joe Walton, a big end whose father played for the 'Skins, and hard running Don Bosseler from Miami may help.

Quarterback also is Parker's big problem at Pittsburgh and he hopes Purdue's Len Dawson may be the answer. The rebuilding Philadelphia Eagles have some promising newcomers like Tommy McDougal (Oklahoma) and Clarence Peaks (Michigan State) but they have far to go before they become contenders.

Offensively the Bears have everything—fearsome Rick Casares, Harlon Hill, Perry Jeter, Bill Wright, Stan Jones, etc. In addition they have quarterback Zeke Bratkowski, a real take charge guy, back from the Army to vie with Ed Brown.

Shortly before he resigned, Parker negotiated a big trade which brought Tobin Rote to Detroit from Green Bay as "insurance for Bobby Layne, who has had shoulder trouble for several years. They also came up with Jack Kemp, a rookie quarter from Occidental, who showed enough to move Jerry Reichow, to an end post.

San Francisco, unbeaten in its last five games last season, could be the surprise team of the West. John Brodie is expected to aid Earl Morrill at quarterback behind aging but still effective Y. A. Tittle.

The Los Angeles Rams, with Norm Van Brocklin pitching, also are potential trouble makers but the overall lineup looks spotty and not solid enough to win.

In the past two years the Baltimore Colts have come up with three superb backs, Alan Ameche, George Shaw and Lenny Moore. This year they drafted the standout college lineman, Jim Parker of Ohio State, in an effort to build an adequate offensive line.

Green Bay gave up Rote because Coach Liz Blackburn was desperately in need of offensive linemen. At quarter the Packers have Bart Starr, back from service, Babe Parilli and Neir Dame's Paul Hornung. They're strong at end with Bill Howton and Gary Knaflitz but only fair to good at other positions.

Indians Quell Detroit Rally To Take 5-4 Win

DETROIT (P) — The Cleveland Indians belted Detroit righthander Frank Lary for four runs in the first two innings and had to fight off a pair of late Tiger rallies for a 5-4 triumph Saturday.

Mike Garcia needed relief help from Don Mossi and Ray Narleski in the eighth inning but was credited with his fourth straight victory and his sixth in his last seven starts. He drove across two of his team's runs with a second-inning double.

A throwing error by third baseman Dick Williams put Garcia in a jam in the seventh inning and pinch hitter Dave Philley followed with a two-run double.

Garcia gave up a single to Ray Boone and a run-scoring two-base hit to Charlie Maxwell before Mossi replaced him in the eighth. Mossi struck out Frank House but yielded a double to Harvey Kuenn for another run. Narleski finally got the side out and breezed through the final inning.

League Leading Braves Snap Losing Streak; Defeat Cubs 7-2

MILWAUKEE (P) — Milwaukee's stopper, Warren Spahn, pitched a five-hitter and was backed by the home runs of Wes Covington and Andy Pafko as the National League-leading Braves snapped a three-game losing streak with a 7-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday night.

The Braves stayed 6½ games in front of St. Louis and seven ahead of Brooklyn.

The homers by Covington and Pafko delivered five Milwaukee runs.

Spahn had a no-hitter through the first four innings. His hopes for a classic victory disappeared in the fifth as Dale Long smashed one of his pitches for a long home run over the center field fence.

Dave Hillman, starting for the last place Cubs, was charged with his 11th defeat against five victories.

In the sixth, Dick Littlefield took the mound for the Cubs, but the Braves landed on him for two runs in the seventh.

Robinson's Popoff Against Braves Last Winter Woke Them Up

By JOE REIGLER

NEW YORK (P) — Remember Jackie Robinson's popoff against the Milwaukee Braves last winter. A Milwaukee player who understandably asked not to be identified said it was the best thing that could have happened to the team.

Robinson said the Braves lost the 1956 pennant to the Brooklyn Dodgers because they spent too much time in night clubs. Everybody on the Braves hastened to deny it, but it is a matter of record that the club has been under stricter management this year.

There's no question that the playboy charges directed at the Braves by Robinson made the club self-conscious and more determined.

Jackie did what no Milwaukee player could do last year. He stirred up the players. It was the sort of charge that could have been leveled against any club in baseball, because, by the law of averages, there are one or two night life boys on every club. Singling out the Braves, the players thought, was unfair and hitting below the belt. It changed their entire outlook.

The Braves were a chastened and broken bunch at the end of last season. After Brooklyn overtook them that last weekend they looked and behaved like a defeated team. The night before the last game of the season, in St. Louis, some of the Braves went out and moistened their disappointment.

It was not a serious group and no one knew it better than manager Fred Haney. It is common knowledge now that in the clubhouse after the last game, Haney told the players:

"You think I've been a tough so-and-so, don't you? Well, you so-and-so's better go out and have a good time this winter because I'm really going to be tough next spring."

Haney, who served as coach before he replaced Charlie Grimm as manager in the middle of June, knew what he was up against.

Some of the players bridled under Haney's tight rein. The bristling attitude continued right down to the season's end. More than one referred to him as "Little Napoleon" and "Frankie Freddy" behind his back.

There is no such talk this year. An observer, after traveling with the club for a while, can't help but observe the harmony, good-fellowship and cooperation this year. The team definitely has grown up and some of the credit must go to Haney.

Haney had the advantage this year of being in command right from the start and he was familiar with the team's problems and its potentials. It was a contention that the team needed to be drilled in fundamentals and all through spring training, until the exhibition season, he had them out from 10:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

The players were drilled in leading off bases, making rundowns, working cutoffs. Day after day, pitchers practiced holding runner's on bases. And everybody ran. If in an intra-squad game, somebody made an error, Haney would blow his whistle and everybody on the field would run two laps.

The Braves lofty perch only partly haw well it paid off.

Part of the credit must go to the remarkable lift the players got from the wild enthusiasm and fierce loyalty of the Milwaukee fans. Despite repeated failures, the fans' faith in the team never wavered. The rush for tickets this spring was greater than ever. People discovered that holding season tickets was the only assurance of World Series tickets and the fans were sure the Braves would win it this year.

Only a completely unlikely set of circumstances—utter collapse by the Braves or a flock of post-poppements—can prevent the Milwaukee club from smashing its own National League attendance record of 2,131,388 at County stadium in 1954.

Billy Eberly, the Braves' ticket director, predicted the record would be broken by "somewhere between 130,000 and 150,000" that means the Braves should finish with a figure between 2,260,000 and 2,280,000.

TED WILLIAMS IMPROVES

BOSTON (P) — Ted Williams has made encouraging improvement, Boston Red Sox team physician Dr. Ralph McCarthy said Saturday.

The 39-year old slugger who leads the American League with a .376 batting average has been confined to his hotel room since Monday with a heavy chest cold.

Dr. McCarthy said in a statement that he is encouraged by the improvement Williams is showing.

As for his return to the lineup, Dr. McCarthy said that remains a day to day proposition.

Friday Night Scores

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press
Ever watch a bunch of kids playing cops and robbers, where the "dead" guys get up and start blasting away again? That's just what's happening in the major league pennant races. The dead guys won't stay chilled.

In the American, New York's Yankees, apparently home free a while ago, are down to a 4½-game lead again. They booted a two-run lead and lost 4-3 at Washington Friday night while the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 4-3 on a ninth-inning homer by relief pitcher Dixie Howell that again put them just three games behind in the lost column.

In the National, Milwaukee's Braves, looking like a clinch to clinch it quick after a Labor Day doubleheader sweep, blew a 3-0 lead and lost their third in a row, 5-4 to the last-place Cubs.

They held on to a 6½-game lead as second-place St. Louis lost a 4-2 edge slip away in a 5-4 Cincinnati victory. Brooklyn's Dodgers (remember those old kaffers?) now are only seven games behind after winning their third straight with a 3-0 job on the New York Giants.

Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 3-2 on Hank Foiles' solo home run in the sixth that gave righthander Ron (7-15) Kline his first straight.

In the other AL games, Detroit defeated Cleveland with Jim Bunning winning his 17th, and Boston closed fast to nip Baltimore 4-3 with Gene Stephens, subbing for Ted Williams, one of the big guns.

The Yankees dropped this one with two out in the ninth. An error by second baseman Jerry Coleman enabled the tie-breaking run to score after the Nats had loaded the bases with three walks from loser Bob Grim.

Washington chased Sal Maglie, making his starting debut as a Yankee, with two runs that tied it 3-all in the seventh while Truman Clevenger and Bud Beyerly four-hit the champs. Beyerly won his sixth.

The White Sox scrambled from behind with a run in the sixth that junked Alex Kellner's three-hit shutout, then gained a tie with two in the eighth on singles by Luis Aparicio, Nellie Fox, Minnie Minoso and Sherm Lollar. Howell then belted his third home run of the year to beat reliever Wally Burnette with one out in the ninth.

Bob Trowbridge had the Cubs blanked on four hits again until they bagged their five in the seventh. It all started with a one-out error by Ed Mathews. Then ex-Brave Chuck Tanner singled with the bases loaded for two, Ernie Banks doubled for one and Walt Moryn closed it with a two-run single. Bob Rush won his fifth with relief help.

The Redlegs, who had consecutive home runs from Frank Robinson and George Crowe in the first, nailed it with three in the sixth, two on Jerry Lynch's pinch-hit home run. It was the 10th pinch homer of the year for the Redlegs, tying the NL record set by the 1954 Giants.

Willard Schmidt lost his second in relief of Larry Jackson. Southpaw Don Gross won it.

Johnny Podres three-hit the Giants, allowing none after the fifth, for his 11th victory and sixth shutout, tops in the majors. The Brooks had 10 hits, two each by Carl Furillo and Gino Cimoli who figured in the insurance runs after Elmer Valo's first inning homer off loser Ray Crone.

The Red Sox shut out for six by Hec Brown, scored two in the seventh on Jackie Jensen's 20th homer, scored again in the eighth on Stephens' single and won it in the ninth on Pete Daley's two-out double off Billy Loes.

Errors by Chico Carraquel and Bob Avila on the same play gave the Tigers three sixth-inning runs that cracked a 2-2 tie.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (P) — Illinois' top two football teams put on a great offensive show Saturday, scoring 12 touchdowns in the season's first scrimmage.

Quarterbacks Bill Offenbecher and Tom Haller each fired three touchdown passes against the third and fourth teams.

Haller's tosses all were to end Rich Kretling and resulted in gains of 80, 80 and 48 yards. Offenbecher reached fullbacks Dale Smith and Bob Mitchell and end Rod Hanson.

Ford Hurls Crippled New York Yanks To 4-1 Win Over Washington

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Whitney Ford pitched his first complete game in more than a month, Saturday, hurling the crippled New York Yankees to an eight-hit, 4-1 victory over the Washington Senators.

The Yanks protected their league lead over Chicago without their three big hitters—Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and Bill Skowron. The mighty men were out because of injuries or, in Skowron's case, a faltering bat.

Manager Casey Stengel also juggled his lineup to insert Joe Collins at first and Bobby Richardson at second.

The shifting around paid off, as the Yanks socked three Washington pitchers for 11 hits and enabled Ford to coast along by going ahead with a two-run surge in the second inning.

Roy Sievers, the Associated Press League's home run and RBI leader, saved Washington from a one-run lead by hitting a home run over the left field fence in the ninth.

The victory was Ford's ninth of the year against four defeats. Suffering most of the season with a sore pitching shoulder, Ford had not started a game since Aug. 14 and had not gone the distance since Aug. 4.

The clever southpaw struck out four and walked only one while delivering the nervous Yankees their ninth triumph in the last 20 games.

Richardson pounded a double and single and drove in the second inning runs that gave Whitney his cushion.

Fredro Ramos, now 11-14 for the season, yielded all the Yankee runs in his 5-2-3 innings of work and took the loss.

Dodgers Capture Home Run Battle From Giants, 5-4

NEW YORK (AP)—Pee Wee Reese's run scoring single in the seventh inning and Roger Craig's tight relief pitching brought the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the New York Giants Saturday.

All eight of the other runs were driven in by homers. Duke Snider hit a three-run blast in the sixth and Carl Furillo swatted a solo in the fifth for Brooklyn. New York's Valmy Thomas hit a four-bagger good for three runs in the second and Willie Mays whacked one with the bases empty in the ninth.

The Dodgers were leading 4-3 and it looked like Reese's drive was just icing on the cake. But the single proved to be the big blow in the battle of homers.

Craig gave up just one run—Mays' 32nd homer—and five hits in 5-1-3 innings to score his sixth victory.

Pierce Hurls, Aparicio Bats White Sox To 8-2 Triumph Over A's

By JERRY LISKA
CHICAGO (AP)—Little Luis Aparicio Saturday hit the fourth and fifth homers of his major league career, driving across four runs, and Billy Pierce hurling his 19th victory as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Kansas City A's, 8-2.

A six-run fourth turned the trick for the Sox.

The triumph kept Chicago's pennant hopes alive, although the first-place New York Yankees kept 4½ games ahead of the Sox with a 4-1 victory over the Washington Senators.

Aparicio led off the game for the Sox with an inside-the-park homer, but in the fourth belted an honest-to-goodness homer into the left field stands with two mates aboard. He also singled in the third.

It was the first time the brilliant shortstop from Venezuela had hit one out of Comiskey Park in his two major league seasons.

While the Sox clubbed four Kansas City hurlers for 12 hits, Pierce scattered 8 Athletics hits in notching his 19th decision against 10 defeats.

One of Kansas City's runs came on catcher Hal Smith's No. 13 homer in the seventh. Billy struck out nine.

Southpaw Pierce now is the top winner in either major league, moving one ahead of Milwaukee's Warren Spahn. He also moved one ahead of Tom Brewer of the Boston Red Sox and Ruben Gomez of the New York Giants in most complete games at 16.

The Sox got six of their runs from Kansas City starter, Arnold Portocarrero, who was charged with his 10th loss against three victories.

Arenzville's Raiders, the 1956 P.M.B.C. gridiron champs, will be seeking their second straight title, aided by nine returning lettermen. Boistered by veteran halfback Gary Nelson, who scored 22 touchdowns, 14 extra points and threw eight TD passes, and pass catching end Ray Hall, who accounted for nine touchdowns last season, the Raiders are the team to beat for the championship.

A tie game with Chapin last season marred Arenzville's six victories for a perfect season. Coach Don Kemp is back at the Arenzville helm for the fifth straight year. Joe Stinson and Charles Roegge stand out among the newcomers and are slated to see plenty of action. Twenty-two players donned pads for opening drills.

Reject Proposal To Let Pros Play Amateurs

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—The executive committee of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn. Saturday rejected the proposal of an open tennis championship permitting pros to play against amateurs.

The proposal was made by a special committee of the USLTA, which had suggested previously in a report that an open championship be conducted under the association's auspices.

The special committee, headed by Edward Turville of St. Petersburg, Fla., said that after months of intensive study it was influenced in favor of open tennis by two considerations:

"1. The present state of amateur tennis, with respect to practices that are becoming increasingly widespread in the payment of expense money to leading players for their participation in tournaments.

County Board Will Call Vote Nov. 5 On Township Government

The Morgan County Board of Commissioners was advised yesterday by State's Attorney Charles J. Ryan that a petition filed several weeks ago, asking that the question of township form of government be submitted to the voters Nov. 5, is in proper form.

Art League To Open Wednesday; Public Invited

Over one hundred people were attracted to the Outdoor Art Fair held Sunday, August 29, at Nichols park, sponsored by the Jacksonville Art League entering its third year this fall.

Exhibited were pictures of work by League members that depicted beginning phases and advanced work. Also included was ribbon winner work by Nora Lee Groves of Jacksonville (winning at Jacksonville Fair and Illinois State Fair exhibits), those of Marie Houlette of Greenfield (Jacksonville Fair, Green County Fair and Illinois State Fair), and the work of Jan Liehr of Winchester who won work on ribbons at the Greene county fair.

The officers this year in the League are: Nora Lee Groves, Jacksonville, president; Dorothy Edwards, Virginia, vice president; LaBelle Merriman, Jacksonville, secretary; and Dr. W. H. Corey, Jacksonville, treasurer.

The League is open to any interested person with two divisions for enrollment, advanced, to be taught by Professor Howard Sidman, on art faculty at MacMurray College and beginners, taught by Miss Anna Doan, art instructor at Jacksonville High School.

If one is familiar with the basic art fundamentals, such as sketching, shading, colors, oil painting technique, advanced classes are advisable. A person is unfamiliar with the above fundamentals or a bit rusty with the technique, a beginners class is advisable.

The first session of the fall course starts Wednesday, Sept. 11, at the Strawn Art Center, 331 West College avenue. Meetings will continue the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month from 7 to 10 p.m. There are three terms each season, fall, winter and spring. A charge is made of ten dollars per term or twenty-five dollars per season, a saving of five dollars.

Interested persons are asked to attend the first meeting to either enroll or acquire more information.

Train Hits Auto At North Main Crossing; Clinton E. Kemp Hurt

Clinton E. Kemp, 75, of 728 North Prairie street, was injured at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a Wabash freight train struck the side of his car at the North Main street crossing.

His condition last night at Our Saviour's hospital was not believed to be serious, but the full extent of his injuries is not known.

Mr. Kemp was driving north on Main street. He told police he saw the lights blinking, but another train was sitting on the track and two cars in front of him crossed safely.

When he drove on the track the rear of his 1941 Buick was struck by slow-moving Train No. 70 eastbound. The automobile was moved 15 or 20 feet after the impact. Mr. Kemp was not thrown out and the car did not overturn.

He was conscious when taken to Our Saviour's hospital in Cooney's ambulance. He complained of pain in his left side, and X-rays were to be taken.

The automobile was considerably damaged on one side. It was towed to the Brummett used car lot.

Morgan's Fertile Topsoil Goes Most Everywhere

Ted Pierce of the local soil conservation office keeps warning his farmer friends that they are losing much of their fertile topsoil through wind and water erosion and that they should do something about it.

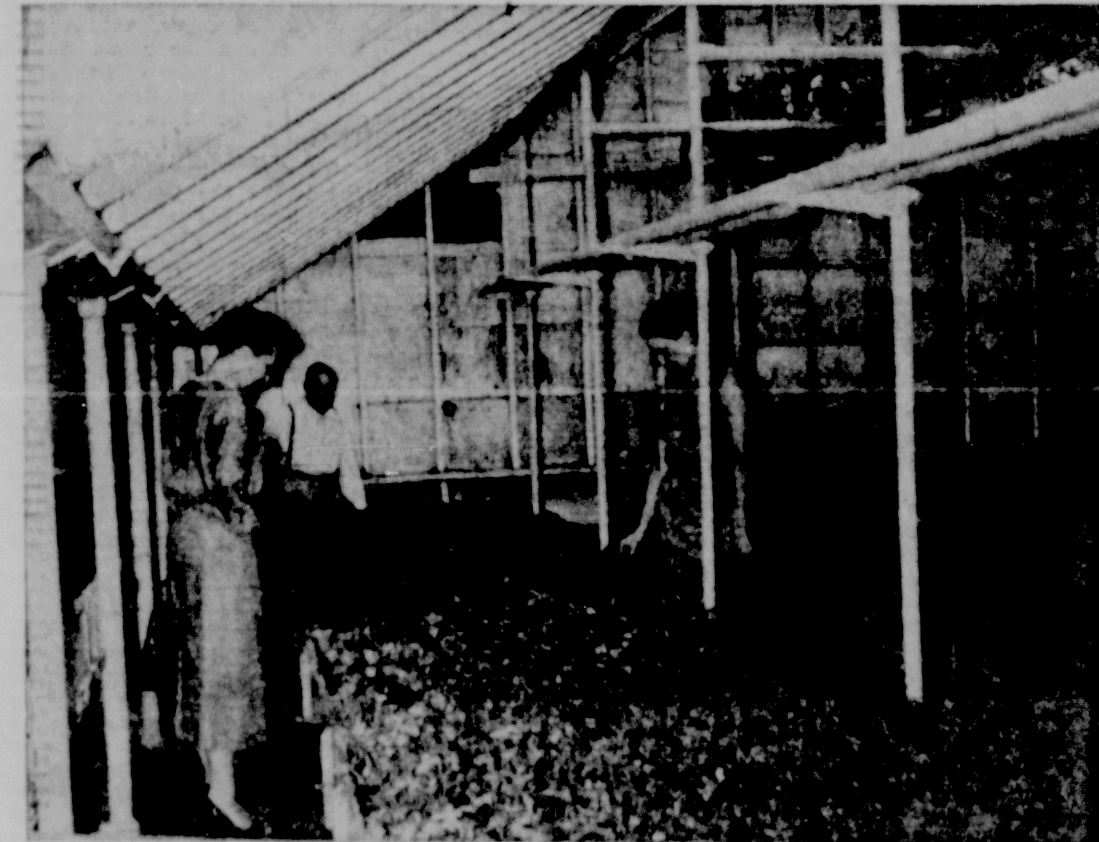

A beating rain on a freshly-tilled, sloping field can carry away many tons of soil and some of the precious particles will go all the way to the Gulf of Mexico. A fierce wind from the southwest in springtime often plays havoc with fall-plowed fields.

A certain 10 acres south of West Greenwood is losing its topsoil. Every week six trucks carry it throughout an area bounded by Lincoln, Nebr., on the west, Indianapolis on the east, Nashville, Tenn., on the south and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on the north. These trucks average a thousand miles a week and carry thousands and thousands of potted plants raised in the Jacksonville greenhouses of Joseph L. Heini Co., Toledo, Ohio, to midwestern dime and department stores.

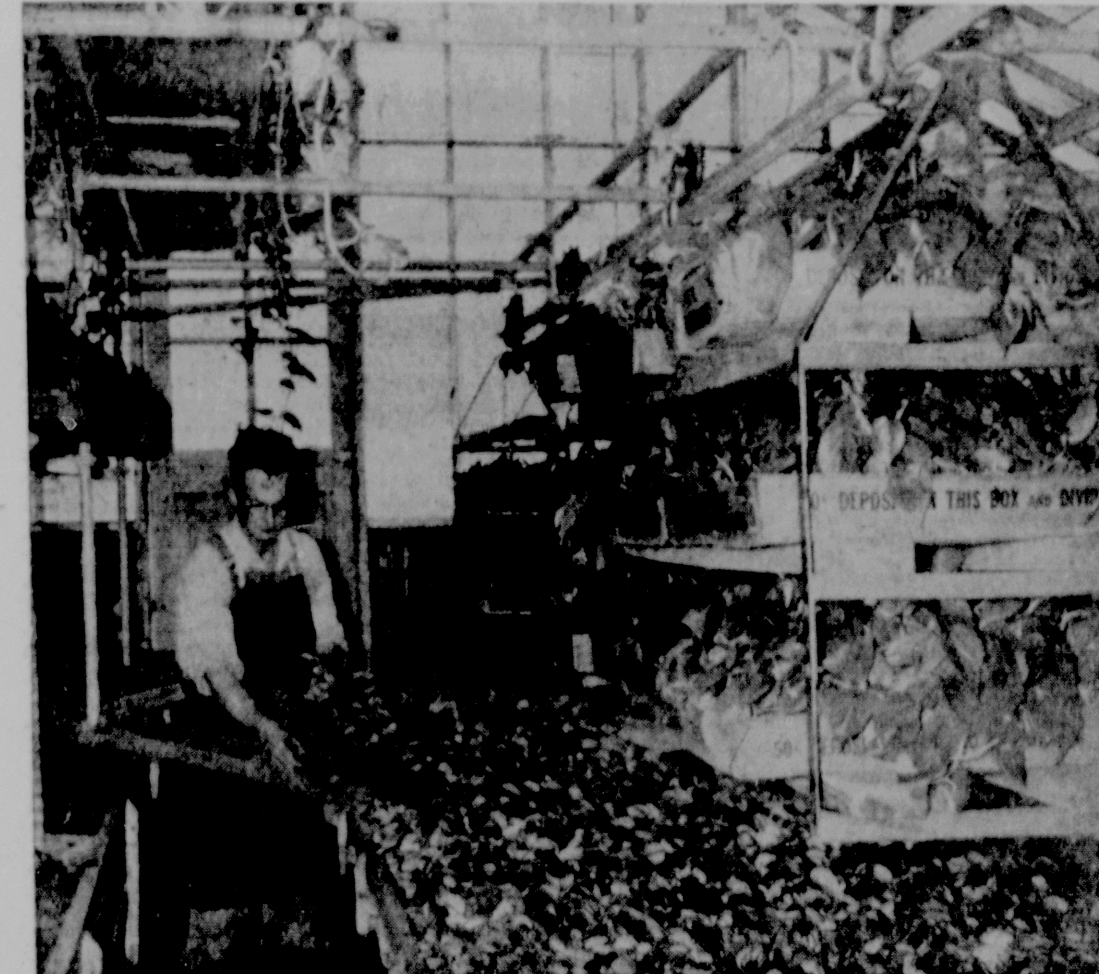

The field loses some 170 tons of soil annually, but Pierce isn't concerned about it, because it is the base for 35 steady jobs in Jacksonville.

A bulldozer slices off a foot of the soil in the field just south of the greenhouse and ricks it up. A power loader dumps it into a truck bed. In the bottom of the bed there are five perforated pipes. When the truck is filled with dirt the pipes are connected with a line carrying live steam at 40 pounds pressure. The top of the load is covered with a tarpaulin and in 40 minutes the soil is sterilized.

One hundred different varieties of plants and flowers are raised and sometimes James C. Kane, production superintendent, has a million plants growing at a single time. Larry Durkee, who came here from Toledo six months ago, is in charge of merchandising.

JAMES C. KANE, production chief who has been with Heini for 31 years, is shown with a violet about ready for market. It will bring 99c in some dime or department store.

HELEN ROBINSON deftly uses a sharp knife to divide a watermelon begonia leaf into two cuttings. A larger leaf, expertly cut, will produce four plants.

MARIE CARTER is shown setting begonia cuttings into a starting bed of clean, wet sand. She places 90-100 of them in a single row and they'll be ready to pot in about two weeks.

VERA McKINNEY is potting No. 485, a combination of sansevieria, philodendron and nephthytis into a three inch pot that may travel far before it is sold in some midwestern store.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

Husks on ears of corn are rapidly losing their green camouflage, reminding the mechanics to get the forage choppers into first-class condition for making silage. In the next two or three weeks, corn on some 150 acres of Station land will be cut, making about 1,500 tons of silage.

80 Per Cent Dented
Corn that is 80 to 100 per cent dented will make high quality feed and carry about the right amount of moisture for satisfactory preservation. The moisture content will run about 65 per cent. Silage made at a higher moisture content will be too immature to realize the highest yield and feeding value and will probably drain excessively, carrying off the most valuable parts of the feed nutrients.

From Silage Chopper To Trench
In the silage-making operation here on the Station, field choppers will blow the forage into trucks driven alongside them. The trucks will dump it into trench silos, where it will be spread and packed with a wheel-type tractor. The tractor operator has an important job: the value of the feed coming out next winter will depend on how well he spreads and packs. The big mass coming from the truck will never pack well unless the tractor operator spreads it and drives continuously over it between loads.

The trenches will be filled completely in overlapping sections, starting at the head and finishing at the foot. The full trench will be stacked about two feet higher in the center, with silage overlapping the sidewalls.

Cover?
The decision whether to cover the filled trench will depend on how long it will be before the silage will be fed. If the silage is to be used the first winter, there may be little need for a covering. However, if the stored feed is to stand over for another year, a cover of sawdust, dirt, ground limestone or plastic is definitely needed.

As a final touch, if needed, a diversion channel or terrace will be constructed at the head of the trench to carry surface drainage off and around the silo.

Sorghums
Sorghum forages remain juicy longer than corn, making it possible to extend the silage-making period over a longer time. Corn, in a week, may pass rapidly from a too wet to a too dry condition, while sorghums will be in silage-making state for two or three weeks. When the seed is in the stiff dough, sorghums are ready for ensiling.

Fire Destroys Cafe Kitchen At Jerseyville

JERSEYVILLE—Fire damaged the interior of the Annette Cafe on East Pearl street about 9:30 a.m. Thursday when a gas stove in the kitchen developed a defect and set fire to the interior of the kitchen.

Employees of the cafe escaped injury when one of them saw what was occurring and shouted a warning to the others.

The Jerseyville Fire Department arrived and battled the fire threat at the start with chemicals. It was necessary, however, to resort to use of the water to completely extinguish the fire that had developed.

Damage to the kitchen and all of the kitchen equipment was reported as about 100 per cent. The fire was confined largely to the kitchen and damage to the adjacent dining room consisted principally of smoke damage. It was necessary to close the cafe for an indefinite period pending redecoration and reequipping of the kitchen.

LAMB CROP FOUND 3 PER CENT SMALLER

The 1957 lamb crop totaled 19,800,000 head, 3 per cent less than the number raised last year. This year's lamb crop is about equal to the ten-year, 1946-55, average.

Over half of the reduction in the lamb crop occurred in Texas, where drought last year forced reductions in breeding flocks. The Texas lamb crop is estimated at 3,238,000 head, 11 per cent below a year earlier. Altogether the 11 western states are raising 12,100,000 lambs, 5 per cent fewer than in 1956.

The 35 native states are raising an estimated 7,697,000 lambs this year, 1 per cent more than last year and the largest number since 1946.

Two features of the lamb situation are worth special note:

1. A larger than usual proportion of the western lambs may be ready for slaughter when coming off the ranges. This would tend to hold down prices of slaughter lambs this fall. It would also reduce the supply of feeders.

2. Texas and other former drought areas may provide a strong demand for ewe lambs for flock replacements. This, too, will restrict the supply of feeder lambs.

The situation seems to add up to a small supply and high prices for feeder lambs this fall. This may be followed by a greater than normal seasonal price advance from fall to spring.

Wool. The nation's 1957 production of shorn wool is estimated at 226 million pounds. This is 3 per cent less than last year and 4 per cent less than the ten-year average.

Recent prices of wool were 12 to 14 cents a pound higher than those of a year earlier. The higher prices will reduce the cost of the wool program to the U. S. Treasury, but it will not increase farmers' incomes. Wool payments to farmers will be reduced, according to law, to keep total returns to farmers the same as in 1956.

Meetings To Discuss Farm Bureau Policies

Farmers in Morgan county — and in every county throughout Illinois — this month are meeting in township groups to come up with ideas they think will benefit all agriculture.

This is Policy Development time. Starting with township meetings, farmers are pooling their opinions and their observations to help form the resolutions that will guide their county, state, and national Farm Bureau organizations in 1958.

"Every farmer is urged to attend his Policy Development meeting and offer his suggestions on current agricultural problems," Roy E. Nickel, Morgan County Policy Development chairman, said. "Only by participating in this effort to gain the best thinking of all Farm Bureau members can farmers fulfill their responsibility to themselves and to their neighbors. It is imperative that Farm Bureau members face problems together rather than sit back and wait to see what other folks might do."

Meetings Scheduled
Following is the policy development meeting schedule in Morgan County.

Sinclair — Sept. 10, 8 p.m.
Franklin — Sept. 11, 8:30 p.m.
Chapin — Sept. 12, 8 p.m.
Woodson — Sept. 13, 8 p.m.
Jacksonville — Sept. 18, 8 p.m.

From these local meetings, the county Policy Development committee will prepare a county report, Nickel explained. This report will be read at an area meeting, which will be held in Jacksonville on Oct. 16. At this meeting county Farm Bureau leaders will have a chance to hear what farmers in other counties are thinking.

To Resolutions Group

These county reports go to the tentative resolutions committee of the I. A. A. Boyce Moore, president of the Morgan County Farm Bureau, is a member of the committee. These reports are studied carefully. Hours of deliberation are given them. In addition, an open session of the committee is held at the I. A. A. annual meeting so that any member can appear before the group and express his views on matters of interest to him.

After all these deliberations and after much discussion the tentative resolutions committee prepares resolutions for the voting delegates to consider. These resolutions may be modified, adopted or defeated by the voting delegates. Those that are adopted become the guiding directives for officers and directors of the organization.

"Resolutions concerning county subjects which are adopted by our county Farm Bureau members guide our county boards of directors," said Nickel.

"Resolutions adopted by the voting delegates which concern state issues guide the I. A. A. board of directors and officers. Those on national issues act as recommendations to the American Farm Bureau Federation annual meeting in December."

Industry's Smart Move

Any economic system has its rigid features. But on balance the American free enterprise system has more flexibility than any other on earth.

One proof in recent years has been the growing diversification of products, turned out by many firms as a way of spreading their risks.

Another of quite another sort is observable now. Companies plagued by rising costs have switched away from owning to renting many of the facilities they need.

They have discovered that owning office buildings, factories, truck fleets, and even manufacturing equipment is often an unnecessary cost burden. So they sell them off and then rent back the space and the machinery they require, including truck transport.

Possibly the most imaginative part of this whole trend is the leasing of factory tools. In the nature of things many producers find that substantial amounts of their equipment may lie idle for long periods of time, being needed only at limited stages of the manufacturing process.

What more sensible than to give up owning such stuff and instead renting the tools only when necessary?

If the renting organization can schedule use of the machinery evenly, the result will be a saving all around, and a far more economical use of the tools involved.

Even if the plan has just limited application in U.S. industry, it obviously recommends itself strongly.

Watch These Economic Factors

This, of course, is the time of mixed economic trends, some pointing toward record activity, some showing a leveling off, others indicating a downturn.

One of the big sustaining factors in recent years, in the midst of certain obvious discouragements, has been the continued high level of business expenditure for new plant and equipment. This is always viewed as an evidence of long-range business optimism, and is given great weight.

Lately, however, the signs have grown that outlays for heavy machinery and equipment are tapering off. In the first half of 1957, orders in this field fell some 5 per cent below the January level.

They have climbed back a bit in the current period, but the forecast is for another drop running through the rest of this year and most of 1958.

Other statistics can be marshaled in support of the tapering-off theory. Orders for machine tools have been off the 1956 pace as much as 38 per cent. For structural steel they were down 21 per cent from 1956 levels in the first half of 1957. And so on.

These are warnings of consequence, and should alert business and government leaders to keep a sharp eye out for weakness in the more general trends.

NEW YORK (U.S.)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That a theater in South Africa beat the boxoffice slump by providing laundry service for its patrons. When they emerge from the movie, the week's washing is finished and ready to take home.

That in some parts of Alaska, where the temperature drops to 60 below zero, housewives have found the best place to keep food "warm" is in the refrigerator.

That heat travels faster than cold—which may explain why it's so easy for anyone to catch cold.

That Arthur Murray tells of the farmer who took dancing lessons by mail for six months, then wrote: "Have finished your course. Please send partner."

That the British army lists the 66 Barbary apes on Gibraltar as "gunners" and issues them special army rations. The reason: Legend has it that Britain will hold Gibraltar as long as the apes remain there.

That there's a nonsinkable golf ball on the market now for players who like to play water shots.

That a guy parked outside of Wash's Steak House had a shoe tied to the rear bumper and a signed attached to it: "Just divorced."

That 33 of the 48 states have Indian names.

That during the middle ages a female bigamist was sentenced to wear two pairs of men's breeches around her neck for the rest of her life.

That Frederick the Great cured his soldiers of wiping their nose on their sleeves by placing rows of buttons on the sleeve and civilian men's tailors have followed the custom ever since.

That during frontier fighting after the Revolutionary War Indians would taunt a captive white settler by asking "So you want more land?" and then stuff his mouth with dirt.

That the Empire State Building and Rockefeller Center are Manhattan's favorite eighteenth-century generation ago they were Grant's Tomb and the Woolworth Building.

That Chek-Ro, the new board game popular with our straphanger intellectuals, is actually an ancient Oriental game known as "go" in Japan.

That the black widow spider gets her name from her nervous habit of sometimes eating her spouse. (You can never tell what a nervous female will do.)

That the woman writer who said that men were born to cook probably was thinking of the hot summer sun.

If people would just stop to think they'd never think of saying some of the things they do.

Same Country Anyway—It Figures—Old Spanish Custom—Wisecracks

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN AND JERRY BENNETT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Maxwell H. Gluck, new ambassador to Ceylon, proudly walked into the State Department the other day after successfully boning up on all the things he didn't know about Ceylon.

Thirty minutes later he walked out again and hurried home to start cramming knowledge about India.

Purpose of his visit was to clear with State officials before flying to India for a hunting trip. An official reminded Ambassador Gluck to be sure to pay his respects to Ellsworth Bunker, the U.S. ambassador to India, while he was there.

"Since I'm going to meet my hunting companions in Bombay, I'll be able to drop by to see the ambassador while I'm there," Gluck answered the astonished official.

Headquarters of the ambassador to India is in New Delhi, the capital.

BLONDE MOVIE STAR Jayne Mansfield really won an outspoken fan when she made her recent whirlwind tour of the Capitol building.

Friends said that House Speaker Sam Rayburn hasn't been the same since. The other day a woman visitor was complaining to the colorful congressman about movie stars who tour the Capitol as a publicity gag.

"And don't you think it was terrible letting Jayne Mansfield cause all that commotion in here," she asked.

To everyone's surprise, Rayburn thundered back, "I don't think it was terrible at all. The only people I've heard complain are cranky old women."

SENORA HORTENSIA Miranda, charming wife of the Spanish Military Attache, has some disturbing news for folklorists who believe the square dance is 100 per cent American.

"It's just like some old Spanish dances, only faster," she says. She and her husband, Col. Benito Miranda, are considered the champion square dancers of Washington.

POLITICAL wisecracks for 1960 are already beginning to appear. First one on Sen. Jack Kennedy (D-Mass.) is: "There's a lot less there than meets the eye."

U.S. Women Often Describe Husbands as 'Big Babies'

American men would be startled if they knew how often the word "baby" is used by American women to describe their husbands.

Over and over in letters to this column wives describe irresponsible, selfish, bullying, and lazy husbands as "big babies."

A letter before me, describing a husband who throws a tantrum every time things don't go to suit him, says with final resignation, "Well, at least there will always be a baby at our house—father."

And it might be well for a man to know that when his wife brands him in her mind as just a "big baby," every bit of respect she ever felt for him is gone.

If there actually are, as mail indicates, an increasing number of husbands who act like babies, who is to blame?

COULD it be that women, by helping to earn a living, insisting they know best, wanting to manage family finances, etc., have encouraged men to act like babies?

If women have anything to do with keeping their husbands from maturing, they had better start examining their own attitudes and actions.

Women may want equality and all its benefits. But even more, they want a man they can look up to. There is no contempt greater than a woman feels for a man she regards as just a great big baby.

The World Today

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (U.S.)—After more than four years of President Eisenhower's news conferences, a reporter can pretty well tell what's coming much of the time. These news conferences are never fiery. They're seldom exciting. Eisenhower knows far more about government than he did when he started. He comes to his conferences better prepared. His sentence structure is better, although still wobbles.

He still sprinkles each conference with clichés and homilies. Eisenhower has one rigid rule, never to say anything critical about another individual. This has saved him from personal feuds while preserving the dignity of the presidency.

For some kinds of questions he figuratively carries a syringe full of oil to squirt on troubled waters. Ask him about a serious situation in school integration and his answers are practically standard.

Eisenhower never has said he approves the Supreme Court's ban on public school segregation. But he says repeatedly he will uphold the Constitution.

Integration, he says, is a problem involving emotions on both sides. But he expresses confidence things will work out.

As he said this week: "We are going to whip this thing in the long run by Americans being true to themselves and not merely by law."

Eisenhower takes a very firm stand on Russia but avoids criticizing the Russian leaders personally. He criticizes them collectively. In this way, apparently, he feels he leaves the door open for an opponent to retreat, as he once said in another case.

Inflation? He recognizes that inflation is a very serious problem. In fact, he said this week it is "our major internal problem."

"Although living costs are going up, Eisenhower is against direct government controls but says 'that is not to say the government does not attempt to marshal all of its influence and authority to keep unnecessary price rises from occurring.'"

Saying anything critical about his own Republicans is practically taboo. But the Democrats in fairness must admit that he never says anything very harsh about them except during an election campaign.

Eisenhower didn't have to be a mind-reader to know, before he entered his news conference this week, that he'd be asked what he thought of the record of Congress which quit work last week. He was asked. He was prepared.

He whipped out a list of the things he had asked Congress to do. He said he was pleased with the result on a few major items. Then he ticked off one proposal after another which he had made, but which Congress killed or ignored.

Eisenhower did not mention what happened to one of his biggest proposals: federal aid to education. House Republicans dragged that one up an alley and killed it, with the help of Southern Democrats.

Eisenhower didn't give the bill much help, either.

White House press Secretary James C. Hagerty was asked after the news conference why Eisenhower didn't list the school construction bill among those on which Congress did not act. Hagerty replied the measures the President spoke of were simply examples and that the school aid bill was not the only one on his list that went unmentioned.

In the same way, a small sin in any one of us can spread itself to influence every activity of our lives. This influence touches our associates and degrades them also. In the same manner that the fruit packer culls out the bad fruit, so must we cull out the evil influences in our lives.

Although we may determine where these influences touch our lives, we shall not be able to restore our souls to full unblemished, flavor without God's revitalizing forgiveness.

So what's ahead for 1957-58? Step right up while I gaze into my crystal TV tube.

Here are my predictions:

A half-dozen "adult" westerns will bite the dust because gun-bite adults will be getting too much of a good thing.

The paucity of comedy shows will prove a boon to the ratings of Red Skelton, Danny Thomas, George Gobel, Phil Silvers and the few remaining TV funnymen.

Steve Allen will overtake Ed Sullivan in the ratings because Allen offers a funnier show, while comedy has always been Sullivan's short suit.

NBC's ailing "Tonight" show will give up the ghost, torpedoed by the late, late movie.

The spectaculars on all networks will continue to net the biggest audiences, proving that viewers crave an occasional desert to go with their steady diet.

Lucille Ball will again draw her stratospheric ratings with the stretched-out version of "I Love Lucy."

Groucho Marx will have trouble with competition from the new "Mark of Zorro" show.

The public will weary of the flood of singing emcees on TV, but Frank Sinatra's one who will be among the most popular new entries.

The No. 1 TV show of the nation will be—

Oops, the crystal tube grows a bit smoggy here. I'll have that prediction for you at a later date, perhaps next June.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

A Prophet's Helper

BY WILLIAM F. GILROY, D.D.

An interesting study would be of the extent to which the glory of great men and women, in character and achievement, has been shared, by someone in the background. For examples: a secretary, or a disciple, or some devoted follower or active supporter. The glorified assistants have been active in history, even if the glory has not always shone upon them.

In our own recent history, President Wilson had his Colonel House; President Franklin Roosevelt, his Harry Hopkins. I suppose only the future will reveal how large a part Sherman Adams is having in the career of President Eisenhower.

Away back in the life of Israel, some 2500 years ago, was a noble example of the glorified assistant. He was the secretary and assistant of the Prophet Jeremiah. Everybody knows about Jeremiah, even if they are not familiar with his prophecy or know little of his actual life.

His name is perpetuated in numberless Jeremiahs. But who knows about the secretary, Baruch?

There is, of course, the present-day unofficial statesman, Bernard Baruch, whose character and achievement have won him a worthy place among his fellow citizens. But his name is a family name, not a Christian name, as the name Jeremiah has been in many Christian baptisms.

But that other Baruch, about whom only those well versed in Bible lore would be apt to know—who was he? And what is his claim to honor and fame?

Though he was not himself a prophet, he made public the words of Jeremiah in a time of great peril to himself, showing not only devotion to the prophet, but a belief in his words. Moreover, he showed a deep courage in writing the prophetic words at the prophet's dictation a second time, when a wrathful king had burned the first writing (Jeremiah 36:20-32) and imprisoned the prophet.

The people of the Kingdom of Judah were undergoing the tragedy that has so often beset the people in that little land of Palestine, and that besets Israel even today, the tragedy of not being left alone to work out their own life and destiny. There, in that little land that offers every allurements of sea, mountains and fertile plain, they were caught in the conflict between Babylon and Egypt.

Against Jeremiah's prophecy and counsel the king of Judah chose to ally himself with Egypt, imposing heavy taxes to satisfy Egyptian demands. As the prophet warned, he made a bad choice. The hordes of Nebuchadnezzar utterly defeated the Egyptians and carried the Jews to exile in far-off Babylon.

Glory and tragedy have been the lot of the "chosen people," who have not always honored God's choice. Jeremiah and his helper, Baruch, shared both glory and tragedy, daring to write and speak the truth that was in them, though it brought upon them the hostility of king and people, who sought pleasant words rather than warnings.

The end of the prophet and his helper is unknown except in legend. The probability is that both died, or met death, in Egypt.

But the books of the Prophet, Jeremiah and Lamentations, live on.

EVEN TIGHTER MONEY

"Look for money to get even tighter—in other words, for the cost of borrowing money to rise even more. An easing trend in money rates that appeared in the early spring had run its course by mid-June. And with the government offering its new one-year obligations at a whopping 4 per cent, other borrowers are going to have to pay even more." —Galesburg Register-Mail.

Now that peaches are in full swing, you'll want this excellent new recipe for peach marmalade.

Peach Marmalade
(10 medium glasses)

Four and one-half cups prepared fruit (1 orange, 1 lemon and about 2 pounds ripe peaches); 5 1/2 cups (2 pounds, 6 ounces) sugar; 1 box (21 ounces) powdered fruit pectin.

First, prepare the fruit. Cut 1 orange and 1 lemon in quarters. Remove the seeds. Grind, chop fine, or slice crosswise wafer thin. Add 1 cup water and simmer, covered, 20 minutes. Peel and pit about 2 pounds fully ripe peaches. Chop very fine or grind. Combine fruits and measure 4 1/2 cups into a very large saucepan.

Then make the marmalade: Measure sugar and set aside.

Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil, cook gently 1 minute. At once stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with 1 inch hot paraffin.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Pine-apple juice, cold sliced turkey, whole cranberry sauce, scalloped potatoes, corn - on - cob, cracked wheat bread, butter or margarine, raw cabbage salad, tossed leftover cake spread with peach marmalade, coffee, tea, milk.

Concord MYF To Conduct Three Major Projects

CONCORD—The Concord MYF group organized for its fall program Sunday evening at the Concord Methodist church.

The president, Mary Rayborn reported the Concord group has planned three projects for this fall. They plan to have a visitation period to call on the community youth, have an ice-cream social and a committee has been appointed for a work project to pick up corn.

They voted to call on prospective MYF members in the Concord community Friday September 6, immediately after school. In planning the ice-cream social which will help to raise funds for the youth camp next year, the group decided to have a menu of home-made ice-cream, cake, pie and coffee. No charge will be made, but a free will offering will be accepted.

The committee appointed to the "corn pick-up project" will contact Concord farmers that the group may pick up after the corn pickers and work a percentage basis or whatever arrangements the farmers will make.

Also during the meeting Sara Rayborn was appointed as public relations representative and publicity chairman, and the group changed their meeting night from Sunday evening to Monday evening at 7:00 p.m. Patay Schol group secretary, led the devotions for the meeting.

Furnished Family Room At Low Cost

Attractive low-cost furniture and accessories furnish this family room. Plastic fabrics, plastic table tops and bronze-finished tubular steel frames are sturdy and easy to care for. Spice colors in plaid net curtain highlight beige and bronze color scheme.

Prices Vary, of course, but some well-designed, well-made and widely distributed collections are truly budget-priced. An outstanding example is a new collection of metal-framed furniture that owes its low price tags mainly to mass production techniques. One family room I saw was furnished with sectional sofa, armchair, step tables, round dining table and four modernized captain's chairs for under $200.

Upholstered pieces in this room are covered in a gold-flecked beige plastic and the metal frames are finished in bronze.

Also part of this collection are conventional sofas, side chairs, occasional tables of various sizes and rectangular dinette tables with chairs with open or upholstered backs.

Furniture alone doesn't make a room. Modestly priced fabrics in wide widths and crisp patterns keep the cost of curtains down. There's also a better-than-usual selection of attractive inexpensive lamps this fall.

Blow 'Em Ashore

By D. W. Hendrickson
Part 3: Dangerous Moments

Jim Davidson, seaman first class in the United States Coast Guard, hopes for action as third man on the helicopter crew when he hears an alarm. The surfboat, however, is chosen to go out for two children adrift on a raft.

When it is seen that the water is too shallow for the surfboat Jim rushes to the "Hummer" just as Lieutenant Sanders, pilot, and Tom Albert, first-aid man, come up.

When they were aboard, and the engine warmed up, the Lieutenant opened the throttle, and the helicopter rose as fast as a high speed elevator. About fifteen feet off the ground, the pilot pulled back on the pitch control stick, and the copter was soon skimming over the foam capped waves.

"The sun's clouding over," said Jim.

"Yes, looks like that storm is about here," Tom answered. "That means we've got to get those kids, and fast." Lieutenant Sanders' jaw was set as he piloted the "Hummer" above the crashing waves.

Rough Water
By the time they reached the raft, it was being tossed high on the rough water, and spray was breaking over its surface. Jim looked down and saw that there were two boys about twelve and nine on the raft. Their drenched clothes were sticking to them, but they clung on gamely, and looked hopelessly at the approaching helicopter.

"No matter how carefully I set this crate down, it's going to make a big swell when the floats hit the water," said the lieutenant. "And it won't take much to capsize that flimsy raft," said Tom as a big roller tipped it up. "Maybe we'd better let down a rope and pull the boys up."

"I don't know. I've got a couple of kid brothers about the age of these fellows—husky, too—but I wouldn't trust them to hold to a rope and be pulled up that way," said Jim hesitatingly.

"Yes, that won't work, especially since they've been hanging on to that tossing raft all this while," agreed Tom.

Jim saw a great comber burst under the raft and lift it like a leaf on a guller stream. He could even see the boys' heads as they were swept off the raft and disappeared in a wall of spray.

Where's Younger Boy?
Jim's hands were wet with sweat as he waited for the spray to clear and show whether the boys had managed to stick on. Yes, the bigger one was there, flattened against the surface of the raft. But where was the younger boy?

"I think that last wave got the little one, Lieutenant. No, there he is at the edge, with his legs off the raft. I don't know if he can make it or not. The older swamping that little raft," Lieutenant Sanders said as he worked the controls.

"Sounds like a good idea to me," said Tom, as he made fast the rope attached to Jim's waist. "It better be good; those kids can't hold on much longer." Jim saw that the younger boy now lay sprawled on the raft, apparently exhausted. The older boy gripped him with one hand while he clung to the raft with the other.

Jim caught the boy's frightened look as the helicopter came close down, almost touching the water by the raft. Then the raft was whirled in an eddy and Jim couldn't see the boy's face.

Now the blast of air from the rotor blades caught the raft, and it began to move slowly toward the shore. On it moved in one of those brief pauses when the water was comparatively smooth, that came between a series of great waves. Jim was glad for this slat, as the surfmen called it, because it meant that the raft would be just that much nearer shore if it was capsized by a real comber.

The helicopter moved slowly forward to speed the raft into the shore. There Coast Guardsmen were wading into the water to grasp the frail craft at the first possible moment.

And then it came—the tallest bay wave Jim had ever seen. It thrust at the raft, tip-lifting it shoreward. On the far side of that great wall of water, the raft was lost from Jim's sight.

Rescue!

As the roller flattened out, Jim saw that the raft was at last in Coast Guard hands, and was being pulled up beyond the water's fury. He relaxed as he saw the boys being wrapped in blankets and hurried away in the jeep.

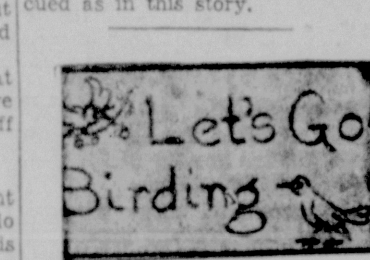

For a moment no one in the helicopter spoke as Lieutenant Sanders started back to the station.

"You really used your head that time, Jim," the lieutenant said. "And you saved two lives today. For I'll say now what I wouldn't even let myself think back there. I don't think we could have made it, if I had landed the copter."

"Thank you, sir," replied Jim. Then he laid his hand on the shiny side of the helicopter. "This good old 'Hummer,' she sure can do anything."

The End

Author's Note: You boys and girls will be interested to know that this story is based on fact. Two boys on a raft were blown ashore by a helicopter and rescued as in this story.

THE BLACK TERN

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Belonging to the same family as do the Gulls are the Terns; but they are generally smaller, their bodies are more slender in build, and their wings are narrower. They are also more graceful in flight, and they usually hold their sharper-pointed bills pointed downward toward the water.

Terns feed differently from the Gulls; they hover over and plunge headfirst into the water for their food; the Gulls alight on the water to feed.

Bird watchers have no trouble seeing three kinds of Terns in the Jacksonville area, but the Black Tern is the easiest one to start with for identification. There are more of the Black Terns, which fly in comparatively large, loose flocks in late summer and early autumn.

This Tern is the only black-bodied Tern. We shall not, in the beginning, worry about the different plumage for breeding, for the immature, and for the adults in winter.

Let us merely think of these Terns as most graceful flyers with gray wings and black bodies and a dash of white. In fact, in the fall the grayer look and small size help us to distinguish the Black Tern from the Common Tern that also visits us. Its tail is only slightly notched and short, whereas the tail of the Common Tern and of the majority of Terns is forked and swallow-like.

Native of Swamps
The Black Tern is a native of the inland swamps, and flies up and down the lakes and fields searching for insects. As it flits over the prairies near wet grounds or sloughs, it may make you think of the Purple Martin in general form and motions.

No bird seems to enjoy bounding over the water more than Terns do, and the Black Tern enjoys this game free joy. Like the Swallows, it seems to be made for the sky and the wind and the water, bounding here, hovering there, diving down, free to go where it pleases.

How would you like to be a Tern?

CD GOES TO SCHOOL
KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — A course in civil defense will be part of the regular curriculum for Kalamazoo public school children starting in September. Kalamazoo schools are believed to be the first in the nation to offer such classes.

A school spokesman said the course will be inaugurated "because we have grimly accepted the fact that the threat of disaster has become a traveling companion of people everywhere."

Great Reader
When Andrew was fourteen he got a job in the telegraph office in Pittsburgh, but he was able to continue his self-education because Colonel John Anderson, a man who had a library of 400 books loaned them to working boys.

In the 1880's and 1890's, Andrew Carnegie made hundreds of millions of dollars in the steel business, and among the first things he did was to give money to towns and cities which would provide a lot upon which a building might be placed, and who would buy books to put in the building.

Altogether, Andrew Carnegie gave 1,681 library buildings in the United States, 650 in Great Britain, 125 in Canada and 41 in other English-speaking countries. Thus he helped many millions of people to help themselves to an education.

Whenever you go into the Jacksonville Public Library you should be reminded of a famous American—Andrew Carnegie, because he gave the building to the people of Jacksonville.

As everybody knows, Andrew Carnegie was one of the world's richest men, making his fortune in the steel business in the last part of the Nineteenth Century.

Like many other very rich men, Mr. Carnegie believed that he should use his money for what he called "the improvement of mankind."

He was a self-educated man, although as a boy in Scotland he had attended grammar school. His father was a weaver of cloth on a handloom, and the neighbors called him "an awful man to read."

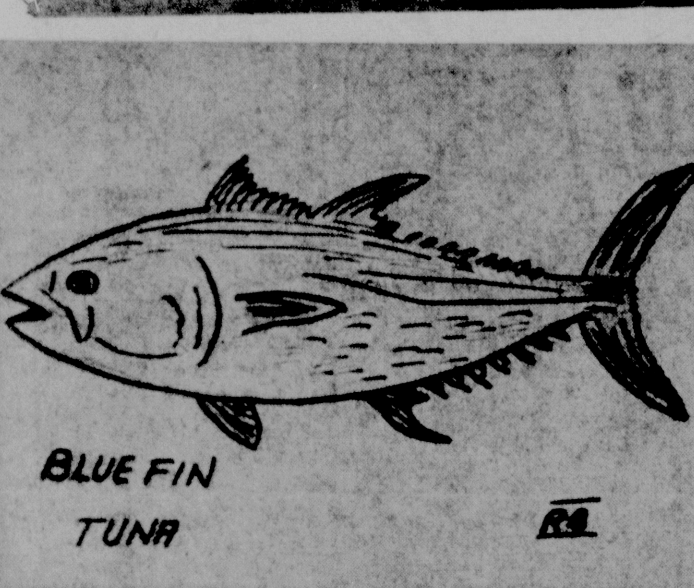

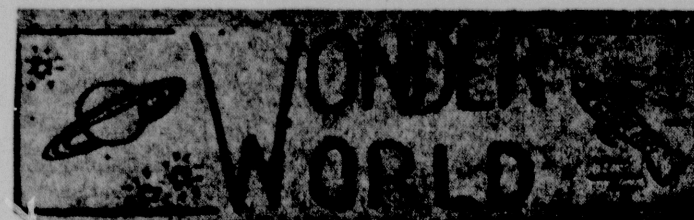

Young Andrew thus grew up in the midst of books, and even after the family moved to the United States in 1848, he continued to read and study.

BLUEFIN TUNAS
By Ray Broekel

Tunnies are members of the mackerel family, and are very much prized for their meat.

The Bluefin is a native of the Atlantic, Mediterranean and western Pacific oceans.

Tunnies are one of the speediest and most powerful of all the fishes. It is ruggedly built and streamlined like many of our modern planes and cars.

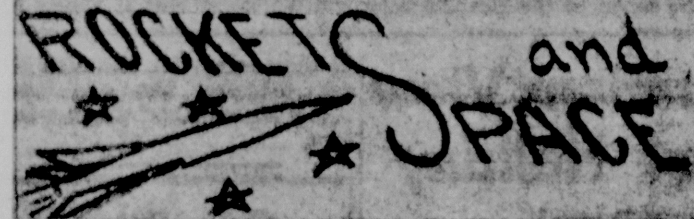

From the picture it might appear that the rather pointed fins of this fish as it skims through the water. However, body grooves allow these fins to be pressed almost flush against the body while the fish is moving.

Tunnies take a back seat to few other inhabitants of the sea. The shark and Killer Whale are two to whom the Tunnies give the right-of-way.

Like Foxes
These fishes generally swim in schools numbering 20 to 30 individuals. They are to the sea creatures like foxes and wolves are to creatures on land.

Herrings, sardines, squids, etc., are some of their favorite eating. Young Tunnies hatch from eggs, approximately one to two days after the eggs are laid. The young are less than 1/4 of an inch in length. They grow to full size in about three years, then weighing about thirty-five pounds.

Besides being an excellent eating fish, the Bluefin Tuna is also recognized as an excellent game fish by deep sea fishers.

THE SPACE LIFT

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

To supply the articles needed for the space stations, and the equipment needed for interplanetary travel and exploration, there must be a space lift. At its busiest, the space lift will probably launch a rocket a day. Only a few of the rockets launched by the space lift will be the large, 4-stage man-carrying rockets we told you about earlier.

About one manned rocket a week may be launched. This will be to rotate the crews in outer space.

The rest of the space-lift rockets will be 3-stage unmanned supply rockets. These will be about the same size as the man-carrying rockets. The fourth stage on the manned rockets is a winged rocket with extra fuel for the return to earth. Since the supply rockets need not go back to earth, they do not need this fourth stage.

Jettison Nose
These supply rockets may jettison (throw away) their nose streamlining as soon as they get above the earth's atmosphere. They will be able to carry 11 and two-tenths tons of supplies or 12 tons of fuel for space ships. The reason they can carry more fuel than other supplies is that fuel could be carried right in oversized fuel tanks while other material would have to be carried in a separate compartment.

Next we'll tell you about INTERPLANETARY FLIGHT.

Rocket Ranger Serial — Century 21 Columbus

By Ray Broekel

Chap. 4: Horrible Monster

Synopsis—The exploration party has crossed the desert to a high levee. Between it and another levee thirty miles off lies a dwarf-sized jungle. They start across the jungle and Jack Baines suddenly shouts with horror to Max Bottomley who is bringing up the tail-end of the expedition.

Max immediately turned around when he heard Jack scream. He would have remained there frozen with horror except for conditioned reflexes gotten in Rocket Ranger training.

He saw, coming directly at him, sliding and gliding along the top of the jungle mass, a monstrous, snake-like creature. It's gaping mouth exposed yellowish fangs and a flitting, orange colored tongue.

"Drop, Max, drop," shouted Jack, who had gotten his blaster from his holster. And Max did that as Jack pressed the trigger mechanism, taking bead on the mouth of the monster.

The rest of the crew tensed as crackling fire sprang toward the nightmarish creature. As the blast encircled its head in a purple flame, it emitted an unearthly scream. Jack shot again and again until the giant snake finally stopped thrashing.

The jungle area in its vicinity looked as if a tornado had descended, for uprooted trees and bushes were piled here and there from the violent thrashing about of the monster.

Max gathered himself up from the ground and muttered shakily, "All these years I've been flying through space without ever thinking of getting killed, and then what almost does it is a snake!"

Joe Higgins gave Max his arm as he came forward. "O.K., Max, you can cut out the bravery act now. Everyone of us was just as scared as you when we saw that monster crawling over the jungle top. That thing is at least 100 feet long and its body as thick as three or four telephone poles stacked together."

Cautiously members of the crew went over to take a look at this fearful inhabitant of Mars. "Utterly fantastic," mumbled Dr. Wharton as he examined it closely.

What's Ahead?
Shortly thereafter the party again started in tracking, but now they advanced more slowly and cautiously. They had seen, luckily in time, some of the spawn of this nightmarish dwarfed jungle.

Eventually they reached what appeared to be a clearing. Here several streams of water were moving swiftly along, and on the other side of them were what they had been searching for. Creeping vines had almost completely covered the remains of a city, but here and there a raw, jagged hunk of building material was exposed to the sunlight.

The earth men made their way between piled up slabs of concrete-like material. They unearthed examples of tools, of weapons, of utensils, that had been buried long and forgotten. They found well preserved books with yellowed pages, and instruments and broken machines.

They spent hours digging in the past history of Mars. Finally Dr. Wharton called a halt.

"We'll have to get back to the village before nightfall. Tomorrow we can come again, now that we know where to go."

"Any ideas of what happened to this civilization, Doc?" inquired Joe.

At length she came to the bright window of The Aris and walked to the desk. Yes, a guest was very ill, medicine had been left with the Doctor's order for a nurse.

A small bell boy came to carry her bag.

"Aren't you a bit young to be a bell boy?" she asked as they entered the elevator.

"You'll see," he smiled. "I can carry almost anything you will need, my father takes the heavy pieces for me."

When he opened the room door, they saw the patient walking across and across the room in high fever.

Doctor's Orders
"You must stay in bed and take your medicine," she told him. "Those are the Doctor's orders."

The boy carefully helped arrange the pillows until the stranger seemed comfortable.

"Now I need four hot water bottles, can you bring them?" she asked her helper.

He nodded and hurried down the corridor. Slowly, an unkempt hand reached out toward her holding a large silver watch. She propped

Tommy Five's answer. Then Tommy Five spoke. "Because you told us to come." Maybe this answer would make his daddy forget about his running away yesterday.

"That's right, Tommy Five. But there is a better reason. Yours doesn't say very much."

Then there was complete silence, which Tom wanted.

"This is our first family meeting. Do you understand?"

The little turtles didn't know enough to say anything. They just looked at one another. Tom tried again.

"We're all here together; that's the meeting." The little turtles looked brighter and moved their heads up and down.

"All right now I'm going to tell you about a new game—an adventure game. Wouldn't you like to play a new game?"

The little turtles really woke up and couldn't wait to begin. They always were looking for something new.

Wretched Suitcase

By Mrs Otto Dorr

Part 1
One evening Mrs. Terrell had a telephone call, "Come to the Aris Hotel, a night nurse is needed."

She got out her clean white uniform and heavy wraps for the night was stormy. It was too windy to carry her fresh cap so she laid it in a heavy black silk bag for the journey down her steep mountain side steps to the avenue.

Midnight Chill
The promised bottles came again and again with out delay but at midnight the room seemed chilly.

"May we have more heat?" she asked.

But the boy shook his head. "Our fireman goes home at midnight. We cannot get more until morning."

She wrapped her long coat about her, but her feet grew cold on the drafty floor. Wind, sleet and snow rattled the window panes and the floor got colder. Then she noticed an old suitcase pushed a little under the bed. Maybe that would help.

To Be Continued

The Coatimondi Of Mexico

By MRS. OTTO DORR

Prattling through tangled growths of Mexico's mountains is the coatimondi, tawny, high-flecked animal with long beautifully striped tails. One was pictured in The Journal's puzzlebox of animals last summer.

Troops in Army Camps of Texas like to get permission to hunt in these mountains. Two GIs skilled in archery had a week's leave of absence to hunt these arboreal creatures.

At length they found their game lightly poled in forest trees. Perhaps the animals weighed close to forty pounds. If wounded only, such an attacking beast could be disastrous, so they went back to camp.

The bows and arrows were laid aside for further target practice, and another leave of absence. Back to the forests they went and again found their quarry, most carefully they watched their prey to be certain that it had not the special colorings protected by game laws.

When one hunter shot, down came a particularly beautiful specimen. Again they went over its markings and asked a local guide to certify their right to take the animal. At a native village they found a tanner who could properly prepare the pelt for a rug.

HIDDEN PEAK

HONOLULU — An underwater mountain rising 11,000 feet from the Pacific floor—but still a mile under water—has been discovered about 800 miles north-east of Hawaii.

Engineers aboard the liberty ship Arthur M. Huddell, plotting the route for a new telephone cable between Hawaii and California, found it. The ship's crew named it "Mount Huddell."

Every minute of a day, 105,000 gallons of gasoline are used in the United States.

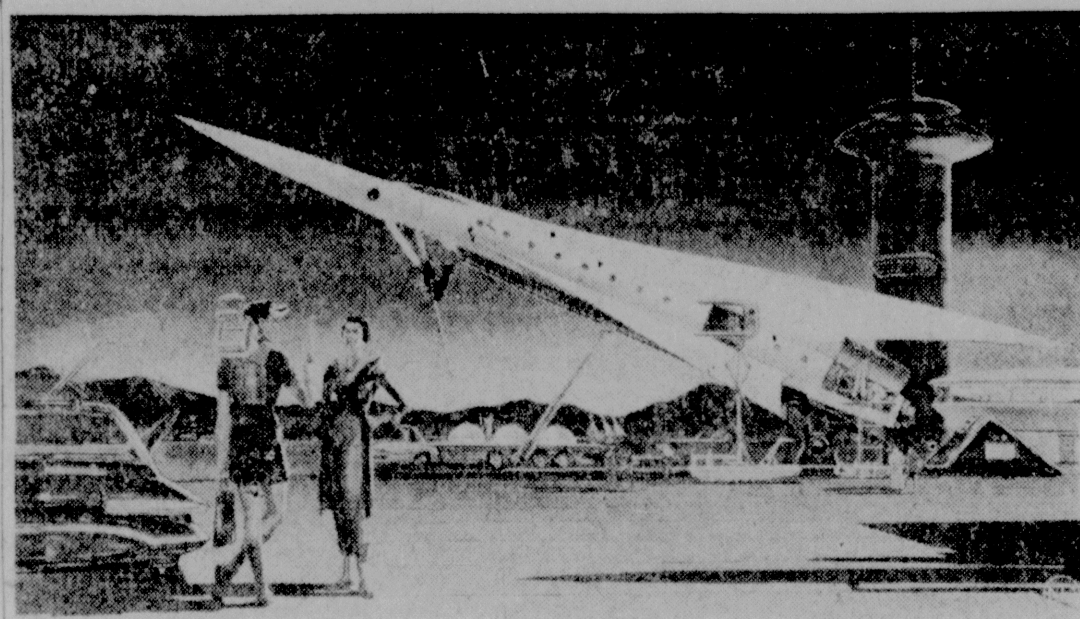

CORNY STORY — Gazing upward, farmer Aaron Haas is dwarfed by these 18-foot-high corn stalks growing in his back yard in Tonganoxie, Kan. Higher even than an elephant's eye, the soaring stalks are kept from falling by ropes. Haas says the corn is an Indian corn and was grown from seed originally supplied by an Indian.

THAT TRIP TO THE MOON—The space traveler of the 21st century may board a Lunar Lander, right, as casually as we now enter our automobile. Two travelers chat at left while a ground crew readies the spaceship for a regularly scheduled flight to the moon. Judging from the appearance of the travelers, we're in for some changes in dress styles, also. The imaginary scene is the work of Ford Motor Company advanced stylists.

Tom Morrow Of Trib Says Chapin Phone Company Is 'An Orphan'

Thomas Morrow of the Chicago Tribune, who takes a swing through Morgan county occasionally, featured the Chapin telephone system in his column, "By The Way," in the Sept. 4 issue of the Tribune.

Morrow's humorous description follows:
"Chapin, Ill. Sept. 3—There are many here who would willingly vend, barter, exchange, or sell the creaking telephone system of Chapin with its 201 subscribers.

"But there is a slight handicap to such a maneuver. You cannot go around offering telephone companies on the open market unless you know who owns them. And the owners of this telephone company, which yet retains some of the old side model grind-up phones, are as anonymous as the left ear drum of a house cat.

"Now do not make the mistake of looking down on this telephone company as a pauper telephone company, because this is by no means true. It is comfortably fixed with 3 or 4 thousand dollars in the bank, altho the owners of these few bob are also buried in mystery.

"We have five directors," said Eugene Nienhiser, company secretary, sadly, "but the bylaws have been mislaid, so we do not know who owns the company!"

"It was back in the 1900s when the German American members of this community first decided they would like to speak to one another by telephone in German, English, or such other language as came to mind. So, as community memory serves, they set up a stock company.

"But the big sleet of 1921 made telephone service as sparse as thoughtful politicians, and the phone company reformed as a co-operative. Each subscriber furnished his own cable, came panting in with it, and said: 'Here, plug me in,' and became a stockholder.

"Now the Chapin Telephone Company muddled through, and its rates have not yet risen above $15.50 yearly for a party line, or $17.50 for a private phone, and total salaries are below $6,000 annually. Ethel Austin, now waiting a California sister, stayed at the operator's post for 40 years, and when someone called and asked, 'Where's Joe Borscht?', she would say, 'I think we will find him over at the elevator.'

"But now critics advise, the telephone has gotten a little careless in its age and lets competing noises creep in among the conversations. Some hold this noise is akin to the roar of the sea, others say it is something like a friendly werewolf or an outraged onager complaining to the wind.

"There was the time, of course, that a man telephoned to say his house was ablaze, and he did wish the volunteer fire laddies would come and see him. He did not come thru clearly, but the operator did know in which direction the call came, and she sent the fire fellows out along the line to look for smoke, and as it was remembered, there was a tidbit of the house left when they arrived.

"Despite such infirmities, elder community members loyal to the telephone company aver, 'It was good enough for papa, and it is good enough for me,' and it has become a fairly bitter community issue. And there is another contingent, avid for information—and there are some lines with as many as 17 subscribers aboard—who like to pluck their intelligence hot from the wire.

*You may start with a fresh piece of information!" said Nienhiser, "but one phone call, as the receivers click to attention, and it is as old as last Thursday's newspaper."

That's the way things are in Chapin. And you might be able to pick up a telephone company cheap if they could just find out who owns it.

BALANCE OF NATURE

CARS ARE MY LINE
by: E. W. Brown
OLD LADIES AND
AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSIONS

Have you ever wondered who makes up those stories that flash around the club or at work? Since one delightful yarn I heard recently concerned cars, I hunted back to its source. Here is the story and, as far as I know, the way it started.

A man in New York stalled on a busy street and while most of the motorists who were stuck behind him just blared their horns, one kind lady offered to give him a push.

It was a thoughtful gesture and he was extremely pleased. But before the lady got back in her car the stalled motorist explained that he had an automatic transmission and they would have to be going 35 miles an hour before he could start.

The lady nodded wisely and climbed into her car. Whereupon she circled the block and came racing down the street at him—plowing into his rear end at exactly 35 miles an hour.

The repair bill was $300.

The story got big play in a New York newspaper. The paper, it turned out, had lifted it from a Boston paper. And the Boston paper had borrowed it from a college paper which had run the whole thing in the first place as a gag.

Personally, I hope the story is true. It will make me think the world is a little brighter, a little funnier, if it's true. I don't need to add, of course, that if you REALLY want to know about the automatic transmissions that are on some of our used cars we have the people with the know-how to tell you.

When you get sick of paying too much for too little come here and see what your dollars still will buy in safe, dependable—and good looking—transportation.

END OF THE HUNT
MEQUON, Wis. (AP)—The hunters rode in hot pursuit, but they didn't get the fox.

A group of Ozaukee County hunters and their hounds had chased a red fox through swamps, up hill and down after hours of the pursuit figured the hunt must end.

It did, but not the way they figured. The fox dashed across a highway and was struck and killed by an auto. As the hunters watched from a distance, the driver got out, tossed the fox into the trunk, and drove off—possibly headed for the court house to collect a $5 bounty.

MONEY CHANGERS

MELBOURNE (AP)—A Decimal Currency Council has been formed in Melbourne to establish and foster a decimal coinage system.

Australia now has the pounds, shillings, and pence system; five Australian pounds are equal to four pounds sterling or $11.20 U.S. Chairman of the council is Sir Leslie Melville, vice-chancellor of the Australian National University. The council will seek the support of the federal government and of 200 of the country's most powerful organizations.

A Royal Commission recommended the introduction of the decimal coinage system to Australia 20 years ago.

JACKSONVILLE MEN AT LACKLAND BASE

DAVID L. TAYMAN

ROBERT A. MARINE

ROBERT K. HOECKER

Three Jacksonville men are stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, where they are taking part in the basic training program of the Air National Guard. They are David L. Tayman, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Tayman, 304 East Vandalla Road; Robert A. Marine, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Marine, 710 South Clay avenue; and Robert K. Hoecker, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hoecker, 1717 South East street.

While at Lackland, the "Gateway to the Air Force," they will receive the same training given to all new airmen. However, at the end of summer training program, they will return to their home Air National Guard unit.

The training program includes academic classes such as military courtesy, customs and traditions, personal hygiene, character guidance and marksmanship.

Another important phase will include field and bivouac living where survival training will be stressed. There they are taught the principles of living in the field.

Citizenship training is stressed for the air guardsmen, and this includes honor, loyalty, integrity and love of the family and country.

Lackland, situated near San Antonio, is the site of Air Force basic military training for men and women and home of the USAF Officer Military Schools, of which the USAF Officer Candidate School, the USAF Pre-Flight School and Officers Pre-Flight Group are operating units.

FANCY MEETING YOU HERE!

Scenes like the above will be a common occurrence at MacMurray College starting next Sunday, Sept. 15, when men come to MacMurray College for the first time in its history. Phil Tinsley of Springfield is shown here opening the door for Carrie Smith, a sophomore from South Bend, Ind. Although the two colleges will be independent academically and in most campus activities, men and women will share most social activities.

New Men's College To Be Launched Sept. 15

The first year of MacMurray College for Men will begin next Sunday, Sept. 15, when a founding class of 150 freshmen—20 from Jacksonville—arrive at the 11-year-old campus.

They will join an estimated 450 women in launching what promises to be the most exciting and eventful year since founding of the college next to a conflict on East State street in October, 1946.

Birth of the new men's college brings with it a bold experiment in coordinate education, unique in the Midwest and comparatively rare in the nation. The term "coordinate" means that the two colleges will be independent of each other in most academic areas while cooperating in social activities.

Men and women will attend separate classes during freshman and sophomore years, since President Louis W. Norris feels that mixed classes during these early years "inhabit natural curiosity" and thus restrict learning, especially for women. Campus activities, such as student government and student publications, will also be separate for men and for women. However, the two colleges will be organized under the same President, Board of Trustees, Administration, and faculty.

Blackstone House Nearing Finish
Nearing completion at the corner of Hardin and East Chambers street is Blackstone House, a $500,000 dormitory for men. Under construction since last February, the three-story building of contemporary architecture will house 160 students. The remainder will be lodged in a nearby college-owned house.

About 100 yards north on Hardin avenue from the new dormitory is a field-house that it also is nearing completion. The field-house, facing west on Hardin, will permit basketball and physical education programs to be inaugurated with the first year of MacMurray College for Men. The steel structure, which will be 100 x 136 feet with a red-brick front and a prefabricated roof, will accommodate more than 1,000 persons.

In addition to orientation tests that will be given all entering freshmen the following week, new students will confer with faculty counselors. Freshman registration will be held Wednesday, with short class periods beginning Thursday, Sept. 19.

Circle Of First Baptist Church To Meet Thursday

Four circles of the First Baptist church will meet Thursday, September 5.

The Mary K. Barry circle will meet at the M. C. Reynolds home at 136 Pine street at 2:30 p.m. with Mrs. Tom Cornish as chairman.

Helen Benjamin circle will be the guests of Mrs. Mary Frisch, 1011 West College avenue, where Mrs. Charles Story will be chairman.

Peggy Smith circle will hold its meeting at the home of Mrs. Esther Stewart, 223 East Vandalla Road, at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. L. B. Stewart is to be the chairman.

Family Gathering Fetes Roodhouse Woman's Birthday

ROODHOUSE — Mrs. John R. McConathy was guest of honor at a birthday dinner given for her at the home of her only daughter, Mrs. Ralph Thomas in White Hall on Sunday.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. McConathy of this city, attending from out of town were her brother, Clifford Turner, and wife and their son, Gene Turner, and Mrs. Turner, and two children of McDora, Mrs. McConathy's former home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schuster and Raymond Eades, Laverne, Okla., are visiting in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tipps, and son, Galen Tipps, and family. Mr. Eades is the brother-in-law of the elder Mr. Tipps. On Sunday, the group attended the Tipps reunion at Jacksonville, and some of the others also visited with relatives at the Pinkerton reunion in Jacksonville during the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ballard and two children, Minneapolis, Minn., left Monday evening after a holiday visit with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ballard, and others. Jim Ballard is the son of Russell Ballard, former Roodhouse resident.

Mrs. Ralph Shewmaker and son, Robert Shewmaker, Springfield, were visitors during the weekend in the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. D. Fischbeck, and husband.

THE CANVAS DAGGER

by HELEN REILLY

THE STORY: Sarah Cavanaugh continues to probe into the death of Grant Melville. She is surprised to find Tom Gillespie there, ostensibly writing Melville's biography. There is also Melville's first wife, Diana, now married to Felix Sutterlee.

AFTER a little while Sarah got a chance to tell Steven about the stone house and the man who had gone out through the front door that afternoon. He was incredulous at first. "Are you sure, sweetheart? Up here? I can't imagine... Give me your key and I'll go over and take a look and make sure that there's no one there now."

He came back in a few minutes. He was troubled. He said soberly, "You're right about those vines, Sarah. Someone did go out through the front door, recently."

Steven wasn't easily upset, he knew something she didn't know; it was only when she pressed him that he told her about the firebug. There was someone setting fires in Cornwall, grass fires first, then a barn. "Don't say a thing about it to Carlotta, she's terrified of fire, but we're all keeping our eyes open."

An arsonist loose in Cornwall — it wasn't a cheery thought. The room was now well filled and more people kept coming. Sarah wondered where Tom Gillespie was.

Then Tom Gillespie penetrated the corner to which Sarah was pinned by a large, buxom red-head who was giving her the history of her marital affairs in far too much detail.

neared the bay the Browns' cottage, and the barn the Satterlees had made over into the studio. Much nearer to her, buried in pines, there was a chimney of what might be Grant Melville's cottage, where Tom was staying. Sarah had no deliberate intention of going there when she started down but she took the path to the right and came out almost on top of it.

She crossed the scrap of untended lawn to the open front door. He wasn't in the studio to the left, the door was open. There was a small living room on the right. He wasn't there either. Then she heard voices. The window at the back of the room was up. She went over to it and looked down on a sort of patio set in the trees at the top of a rough driveway.

Tom was there with a woman. They were sitting in battered wicker chairs at a wicker table having coffee.

SARAH had never seen the woman before. She hadn't been at Carlotta and Steven's party last night. She was beautiful, in her early thirties, tall and dark and luscious, with a heart-shaped face and short black curly hair that covered her head like a cap. She had no hat on.

He was saying, "so you see we can't be too careful. If Chan were to find out that you came all the way up here to see me the fat would be in the fire. He mustn't have the slightest suspicion. To show anxiety will only make him ask questions... You do realize that, don't you, Lisa, dear?"

The woman he called Lisa bowed her head.

"I know, Tom, I know—but it's so hard when I'm alone, when you're not with me." Her voice was soft, husky. She leaned forward and put out her hands on the table top, palms up. She said imploringly, "You won't let that girl divert you, make you forget..."

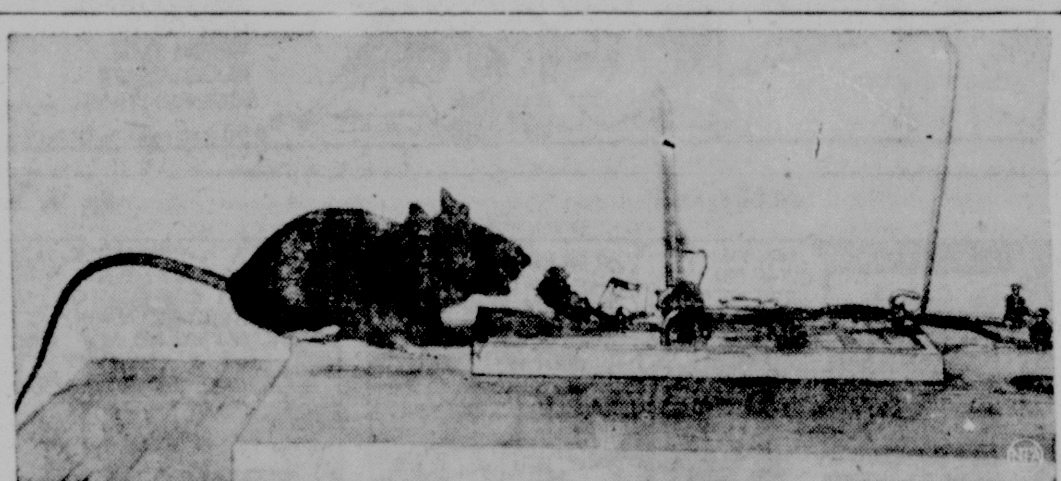

Tom took her hands. He was tender with her. "Lisa, Lisa—don't be such a child. Of course not."
